TWISTER HITS LOUISIANA SIX REPORTED KILLED

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 4 (AP)—Six people were reported killed and at least 19 others injured as a series of small tornadoes and violent windstorms swept across Southern Louisiana and Alabama early today.

Four members of one family—the father, mother and two daughters—were reported killed when a small tornado demolished their home near Arnaudville, La., 10 miles northeast of Lafayette.

A tornado also struck at Mobile, Ala., 100 miles east of New Orleans. Property damage was extensive.

DOG WOULD WALK OUT

Provincial S.P.C.A. Holds Stormy Session

VANCOUVER, April 4 (CP)—The British Columbia branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has weathered the stormiest session of its history.

Heated discussions at the opening Thursday of the branch's annual three-day convention centered around charges by a former S.P.C.A. president, use of unclaimed dogs by the University of B.C. laboratories, and a split in the executive of the Victoria branch.

The convention decided that a special meeting will be held in Victoria to "clear up differences" between the membership and the executive of the branch in the Vancouver Island city.

Lt. Col. L. Gordon Matterson, a former S.P.C.A. president, took up most of the opening session with a 12-page protest, charging "wanted disregard" on the part of a former official. His protest dealt mainly with a personal difference, but he threatened to take the matter to the provincial secretary if not satisfied at the meeting.

Convention delegates rejected a motion to apologize to him, then supported a second motion which ruled the matter out of further meetings.

Secretary D. C. Ricardo said the whole matter was an "awful fuss about nothing" and asked "what would a dog think of us if he walked into this meeting?"

"He would walk right out," was the quick reply of one delegate.

A report that some dogs were being used in U.R.C. laboratories when not claimed from the city pound was followed by a charge by J. J. Corrin, Victoria, that the society was "perpetrating a great betrayal of animals."

Mr. Ricardo said the dogs suffered less pain at the university than when they were exterminated at the pound.

P. R. U. Stratton, treasurer of the Vancouver branch, was elected president, succeeding Mrs. C. D. Hobbs.

Vice-presidents are: Rev. A. J. Edwards of Chilliwack; Dr. Thos. Sell, New Westminster; Mrs. W. R. Williams, Victoria; and Mrs. Hobbs. William Leach was named treasurer and Mr. Ricardo was returned as secretary.

Alberta Government Member Opposes Gas Export Plan

EDMONTON, April 4 (CP)—An Alberta government member has come out in opposition to export of natural gas from Peace River while brokerage houses and stock exchanges from New York to Vancouver prepared for another day of "bullish" trading.

W. F. Gilliland, Social Credit member for Peace River, in the Alberta legislature, said he is opposed to export from the Peace River block until all towns, villages and hamlets adjacent to all pipelines in the area are assured of a supply.

The Alberta government must approve the board's recommendations before there can be any export and no indication of the government's attitude as a whole has yet been given.

N. Henry Gellert, president of the Seattle Gas Company, said five times the amount of gas recommended for export would be needed to justify a line to the area.

Canadians War With Obsolete Weapons—Shrum

Pushbutton Warfare Not for Canucks

VANCOUVER, April 4 (CP)—Canadian soldiers in Korea are fighting with obsolete weapons.

This was claimed here by Dr. G. M. Shrum, head of the physics department, University of British Columbia, member of the National Defence Council, and director of the B.C. Research Council.

He told a meeting of the Association of Professional Engineers Thursday night that although Canada leads the world in some kinds of weapons, "we are tragically behind in other fields due to a lack of engineers and scientists."

Speaking of Korea, he said: "You'd be fed up if you were there. We all heard of pushbutton warfare, but there they are using weapons, and even aircraft, of the last war."

"We have been spending money on research—but we haven't the equipment."

Jet planes, travelling at 700 miles an hour, are using obsolete machine guns, he said. "They might as well be shooting at each other with pea shooters."

The Allies, he said, would be unwilling to "trot out" our best things for Russian observers.

"However, we don't have these things anyway. Engineers and scientists are letting the troops down by not supplying them with advanced equipment."

In spite of handicaps Canada is making important contributions for warfare, he said.

BEST IN ITS CLASS

"Britain and the United States agree we have produced the all-weather jet fighter that is the best in its class."

Dr. Shrum mentioned other weapons Canada has produced that are as good or better than anything the Allies have produced.

He mentioned a bazooka that will not pierce armor "but molten iron comes off the other side and it's very unpleasant to be inside the tank," a high-speed armor piercing shell, and a radar-controlled counter-battery mortar.

"I predict that as far as warfare is concerned, our greatest development will be in the guided missile on which Canada is working."

Pinay Wins

PARIS, April 4 (Reuters)—Premier Antoine Pinay today scored another victory in the budget debate when the National Assembly defeated a Socialist amendment calling for increased taxation of company profits.

Voting was 406 to 206.

Pinay told the assembly before he considered it a confidence vote.

The government suffered a minor setback later when the assembly rejected by 318 votes to 295 a proposed increase in automobile registration fees.

The stories graphically recall the days of perpetual warfare between Vancouver Island Indian tribes when stealthy canoes raided villages, kidnapped women and girls, or for revenge and booty.

The late Frank Verrier and Christ Paul acted as interpreters for the author as she collected her stories from the old chief to make an invaluable contribution to the history of B.C. Indians.

11TH-HOUR STEEL TALKS TO BE TRIED

Government Succeeds in Obtaining Wage Conference to Avert 700,000-Man Strike

NEW YORK, April 4 (AP)—The government succeeded in obtaining new steel wage talks today in a desperate attempt to stave off a strike formally set for Wednesday by 700,000 steelworkers.

Negotiators for the "Big Six" steel firms and the United Steelworkers Union (C.I.O.) agreed to an appeal by John R. Steelman, acting mobilization director, to stand by in New York for a new try toward a settlement.

Stelman said he is sending Nathan Feinsinger, chairman of the wage stabilization board, to New York immediately.

NOTICES OUT

A conference between the management and union negotiators collapsed Thursday and the union followed it up by mailing strike notices to the steel firms and union locals.

David G. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.), dropped the strike notices in the mail late Thursday night.

The union insisted the industry comply with the wage and other proposals by the Wage Stabilization Board. The industry balked on the ground that the government refused to authorize price increases sufficient to meet increased labor costs entailed in the W.S.B. recommendations.

In Cleveland, Walter Reuther's 1,000,000 United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) pledged "100 per cent support" to the steelworkers. Reuther did not elaborate.

It appeared that only a government seizure or a presidential order for a Taft-Hartley law injunction could stave off a strike in mills that produce 95 per cent of the country's steel.

WILL RESIST

The industry said it would resist a seizure. The union said it would fight any move for a Taft-Hartley law provides for an 80-day, no-strike injunction under national emergency provisions.

Wage negotiations between the industry and the union collapsed Thursday. Promptly an industry spokesman, John A. Stephens of U.S. Steel, said companies would begin "cooling their furnaces" today.

And union president Philip Murray said late Thursday night that a strike notice already had been drafted, ready to be mailed this morning to the companies and union locals. He said he thought a strike would "definitely take place."

Six Children Die as Home In N.B. Burns

CAMPBELLTON, N.B., April 4 (CP)—Six children were burned to death early today when a converted barn erupted in flames in this small lumbering town on the New Brunswick north shore.

The mother and a small son fled just before the building went up in flames.

The fire started about 8 a.m. while the family was sleeping. It was destroyed before firefighting equipment could reach the scene. Details were not immediately available.

The dead, children of Mr. and Mrs. Odina Lavoie, are: George, 18; Evelyn, 15; Odina Jr., 11; Patricia, 9; Rosaline, 7, and Giselle, 3.

Early reports said the mother was awakened by her son Raymond as the blaze was gaining headway.

As she threw open the door, a sudden blast of air turned the building into a funeral pyre.

Searing flames prevented her from returning into the house to rescue the other children. The father was at work in a lumber mill at the time.

The family lived in two small rooms, whose walls were covered with old newspapers against the cold. The mother was sleeping with the six younger children in one of the rooms when the blaze broke out.

Burning coal from the stove, which set fire to the newspapers, is believed to have caused the blaze.

1.7 Drop Attributed Largely to Meat Prices

OTTAWA, April 4 (CP)—The cost-of-living index during February declined by 1.7 points to 189.1 from 190.8, the Bureau of Statistics reported today. The index reached a peak 191.5 last December.

The second consecutive monthly decline in the prices barometer, based on 1935-39 prices equaling 100, was sparked mostly by a drop in meat prices, the bureau said.

It was the biggest drop since December, 1942, when the index also declined by 1.7 points. The February decline followed a drop of seven-tenths of a point during January.

Meats declined along with eggs, oranges, cabbages, topcoats and men's suits. These overbalanced increases for rent, furniture, dishes, hardware, floor coverings, telephone rates in eastern Canada, domestic coal and health and personal care, along with newspaper and theatre admissions.

The February decline of 1.7 points or .9 per cent, compares with the record drop of 4.2 points, or 3.2 per cent, during May, 1921.

FOOD DOWN

Among the sub-groups, the food index dropped for the second consecutive month to 241.7 from 248.1. The peak was 250.2 last October.

Rents, surveyed for the first time in five months, climbed to a record 146.3 from 144.8. Fuel and light increased to 152.5 from 151.3; clothing declined from 211.2 from 213.03; home furnishings increased to a peak 200.8 from 200.1; and the miscellaneous column climbed to 146.9 from 146.5.

The bureau estimated that since August, 1939, the cost-of-living index had increased by 87.6 per cent.

Recently, Trade Minister Howe hinted at the price drop for February and indicated that it would be followed by a further decline when the March edition is completed next month.

Canada Bans All Livestock From Britain

OTTAWA, April 4 (CP)—The federal government today banned all livestock imports from England and Scotland as an extra precaution against the possible spread of foot-and-mouth disease.

The agriculture department in a statement said "this additional ban was to keep the virus of foot-and-mouth disease out of Canada."

Previously, Canada allowed livestock from the United Kingdom to be imported under permit control. No more permits will be issued until further notice, the department said.

Wire Service Between 39 Key Cities Open—Western Union

NEW YORK, April 4 (AP)—Western Union says 39 key cities sending and receiving messages plus New York City will start among themselves today despite strikers' claims that their walk-out is almost 100 per cent effective.

Some 31,000 workers, members of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union (A.F.L.), struck yesterday in the first country-wide telegraph strike in the United States since 1919.

A separate threat of a telephone strike set for Monday by 40,000 workers in Michigan, Ohio and Northern California threatens to further snarl the country's communication systems.

The initial impact of the telegraph walkout, over a wage dispute, cut the usual wire message flood to a trickle. But later in the day the company announced its "key city" message circuit.

plan because "employees are disgruntled because of the strike call."

The company explains its "key city" set-up this way:

"The public at any one of 40 large cities throughout the country can send telegrams and money orders to any one of the other 39 cities."

In Washington last night, however, Adolph Brungs, national president of C.T.U.'s Western Union division, said:

"On the basis of a late check, the strike looks exceptionally good. Western Union is sending practically no business."

The union is demanding wage raises and other benefits amounting to an estimated 50 cents an hour per worker. Western Union has announced no counter offer. The C.T.U. contract expired at March 31.

Present wages in both telegraph and telephone industries average between $1.53 and $1.63 an hour.

$300,000,000 BELOW 'CRISIS' LEVEL

Britain Hits Financial Trade Low, Butler Informs Parliament

LONDON, April 4 (AP)—Britain disclosed today the gold and dollar reserves which pay for her life-giving trade have sunk below crisis level with a loss of $635,000,000 in the first three months of this year.

Since the war Britain has considered a $2,000,000,000 reserve rock bottom for financial safety. Today, Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler told the House of Commons, the reserves are down to only $1,700,000,000.

That's the lowest level since a similar crisis forced a 30-per-cent devaluation of the pound on Sept. 18, 1949. The rapid decline of the reserves has cut them by more than half since they stood at $3,800,000,000 nine months ago.

Butler found some grounds for hope, however, that the crisis is beginning to ease. He told of a "turning tide" in March and said "toward the end of the month our reserves actually rose."

He did not disclose what low mark they reached before the rise began.

The slump of the gold and dollar reserves—which finances the world trade of the entire sterling area—coincided with a severe slump in British exports.

Since the Conservative party won power last October, Butler has imposed three sets of import cuts totalling $1,680,000,000 a year in an effort to make purchases abroad fit Britain's slendering purse by the end of this year.

REMAINS SERIOUS

But he told Commons today it is "impossible to give the actual date when we will benefit from the cuts we've made."

"The effect of the cuts are now being felt and should be felt as the weeks and months go by," Butler said, but added:

"The position remains serious. A great mistake would be made if it were thought that we had got through to safe ground."

The decline of $635,000,000 in the first three months of this year was smaller than the huge drop of $934,000,000 in the closing quarter of 1951.

That was one improvement. Others were the month-by-month accounts this year.

JANUARY LOSSES

Losses in January were $299,000,000, in February $266,000,000 and in March only $71,000,000.

The March improvement, however, was partly financed by windfalls that aren't likely to happen again.

For one thing, Britain got $28,000,000 worth of gold from South Africa by paying out $10,000,000 in sterling.

Another was the special sale of $35,000,000 worth of rubber, tin and lead to the United States under an agreement reached in January by Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman.

And finally, the United States paid Britain $10,000,000 under a previous promise to cover part of the gold Britain lost through obligations to the European payments union.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

Sometimes, in my more dejected moments, I'll confess that I'm a long way from being the complete angler. In the summer I practise enough to be fairly adept, but the art of fishing escapes me.

Occasionally I'll catch a trout, usually trolling. But even my elaborate show of unconcern when I've snagged one ignobly on a gang spoon doesn't fool anybody. Everyone knows it was just luck. And when, on very rare occasions, a fish happens to take a fly I've cast, I can't help running up and down the beach with the fish in my hand, shouting, "Lookit, I got a fish, I got a fish. Took him on a Montreale. Fine fly a Montreale. Best fly there is for this lake. Lookit, I caught a fish."

Stott

Then I realize that only my friends are smiling indulgently. Fishermen just sort of turn away, embarrassed by my babbling, probably wondering how anyone who prattles the way I do should pretend to be a fisherman at all.

No, truthfully, I'm not a very good angler. Except in moments of crisis, though, I cover up fairly well. When people asked me how I made out on opening day, I was decently reticent about it. "Not so well," I said. Not so well, nah, I never even saw a fish. Then I added "But Joe Jewkes pulled in some nice ones."

It's all said in an offhand manner, so the listener will get that me-and-Joe-Jewkes impression. Joe, I've never met. But when a guy gets his picture in the paper behind a mess of trout on the first day of the season, what's the harm in letting folk think that we're a couple of brothers in the same fraternity? We fished in the same lake, didn't we?

Me 'n' Rod

Maybe I shouldn't do it, but I have a similar inclination to toss the name of Rodrick Haig-Brown around. Rod, I call him when I'm talking to anglers. We're acquainted. He passed me once, walking out of a B.C. Natural Resources conference, and we had quite a conversation.

I said "How do you do, Mr. Haig-Brown." He said, "Oh, hello." There's a sort of camaraderie among us fishermen.

Not that I haven't been mistaken for an angler on occasions. There was one time when a game warden, who shall be nameless, misunderstood my position in a little debate about fishing licenses.

And there was another instance in which George Alexander, deputy minister of fisheries named me in a public meeting. He said he was a little fed up with sports fishermen who squawked because some restrictions were placed on them in Cowichan Bay, and he added, "I'm looking right at you when I say that, Mr. Stott." He said that, right in public meeting. I was so darn proud at being taken for a sports fisherman I nearly got up and bowed even though I've never tried to fish at Cowichan Bay.

Frankly, I'm not as good as my talk when it comes to fishing. But there's a change due. I was chatting with Cliff Carl at the Museum and he told me about some experiments taking place now on fish. He said a couple of scientists had determined the reaction of certain species to special chemicals in water.

Kindness Does It

The experiments indicated that fish could be taught to do certain things under certain conditions. The way, he explained, these scientists put minnows in a tank. At one end they fixed up an apparatus that gave off an electric charge, shocking the fish which came too close to it. At the other end, a chemical was introduced. When the fish received shocks they automatically turned to the other end of the tank, where the chemical was poured in.

After a while the minnows appeared to recognize the chemical influence as an escape from the discomfort of the shock. When the electrical apparatus was removed, they still headed toward the chemical when it was dropped into the tank. Pretty soon, Cliff said, you could get the fish swimming up to any point you wanted just by dropping a small amount of chemical there.

Now my plan is to subject all the fry transplanted to Shawinigan Lake to that experiment. It'll have to be arranged before the transplanting, of course, and I'll get me a bottle or two of the chemical. Then when the new settlers in Shawinigan grow to the proper size, I'll dip my gear in the chemical. With that attraction to draw them, how can the fish resist me?

It looks as if I'm going to get the recognition I should enjoy. When the experts get together to shoot the breeze and when they ask Joe or Rod how the fishing is, Jewkes or Haig-Brown will be able to say, "Not so good for me, but Art's catching quite a few down at Shawinigan." Then I'll retire and write a book.

Amenities May Be Cut From Parks Budget

A car park for Beacon Hill Park and new comfort stations are still in the parks estimates but have a "dim chance" of getting by the next estimate meeting.

That is the opinion today of Ald. Frank Mulliner, chairman, after council's parks committee went to work on estimates for ordinary and extraordinary expenditures totaling $328,000 on Thursday.

"A parking lot is certainly needed at Beacon Hill, but there is not the money for all these extraordinary expenditures," Mulliner said.

The committee took approximately $2,000 from the ordinary estimates but there was no final action on the extraordinary.

Slashing of the watering bill for city boulevards, as suggested by parks administrator W. H. Warren, from $32,670 to $11,223, Mulliner termed "drastic," but said it seemed to be one of the only places where much money could be saved.

Truman Lauds N.A.T.O. Force

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—President Truman said today the North Atlantic Treaty is "steadily increasing our chances of preventing another world war."

He struck this optimistic note at ceremonies commemorating the third anniversary of the signing of the pact by the original 12 countries. Greece and Turkey have since joined the organization.

"If we continue the hard, sustained effort we have begun, we can clearly foresee the time when our common military defenses will be strong enough to defend us against any attack," Truman said.

His talks followed one by Queen Juliana of The Netherlands, now paying a state visit here with her husband, Prince Bernhard.

"The North Atlantic Treaty is an instrument of peace," Truman said in obvious reply to Soviet Propaganda against the organization.

He continued: "In the past, many of the North Atlantic Treaty countries at one time or another have tried to find peace through neutrality and isolation. It didn't work. It never will work."

During the three years the N.A.T.O. countries had begun to develop "sizeable defense forces, trained and equipped to spring into action against aggression."

At the same time the countries were working to build "solid" social and economic foundations.

REMOVE THREAT
"Our aim is to remove the threat of war and thus set free the forces of human progress and advancement," he said.

Earlier, State Secretary Dean Acheson said in an address that "there is not yet enough strength in the North Atlantic area to assure the maintenance of peace... danger is still with us."

"The threat to our security is so great that none of us can afford to do too little."

Queen Juliana of The Netherlands, President Truman and representatives of the 12 other N.A.T.O. members, including Canada, joined in the colorful birthday ceremony.

Acheson, one of the original signers of the Atlantic Treaty, said he is convinced the member countries "can obtain both military strength and economic stability."

He said the alliance set up to build military security has assured far wider purposes.

OTTAWA, April 4 (CP)—The cabinet indicated today it would be willing to accept a measure which would cut Saskatchewan's impending "loss" of Commons seats to three from five.

It would also accept increase to two from one in the number of seats for the Yukon and Northwest Territories. The two steps would raise the total number of Commons seats to 265 from 262.

Under the suggested measure, Nova Scotia would still lose one seat and Manitoba two.

Prime Minister St. Laurent indicated the government would be willing to accept the addition of the three seats in placing on the order paper notice of a resolution to establish a 37-man committee to study redistribution of Commons seats in the light of the 1951 census figures.

In effect he said if the committee recommends them the cabinet will concur.

The notice appeared to be a partial triumph for Saskatchewan members who have been battling the prospect of losing five of their 20 seats.

The way it would be done is by putting a qualified floor under existing numbers of seats. No province would be allowed to lose more than 15 per cent of its seats at any one of the 10-year redistributions.

Truman Opens New Drive on Corruption

WASHINGTON, April 4 (UP)

President Truman called in a new attorney-general today to salvage the corruption purge that was all but wrecked by a violent feud which blasted J. Howard McGrath and Newbold Morris out of the government.

Mr. Truman assigned the monumental task to Federal Judge James P. McGranery of Philadelphia after firing McGrath out of the cabinet. McGrath had disposed of Morris as corruption clean-up chief less than four hours before.

McGranery was expected to go to the White House today with advance assurances that the President will give him a free hand in ridding the government of wrong-doers.

But Republicans and some Democrats in Congress were openly skeptical that the clean-up drive will get any further under McGranery than it has moved in the four months since Mr. Truman hastened back from a Key West, Fla., vacation to take "drastic action."

They said the ouster of Morris, who had tried to circulate financial questionnaires to McGrath and other top officials, showed that the anti-corruption program was never anything more than a "sham."

McGranery left it up to the incoming attorney-general whether to "re-hire" Morris. McGranery indicated that he had no intention of doing so.

McGranery left it up to the incoming attorney-general whether to "re-hire" Morris. McGranery indicated that he had no intention of doing so.

McGranery was expected to go to the White House today with advance assurances that the President will give him a free hand in ridding the government of wrong-doers.

But Republicans and some Democrats in Congress were openly skeptical that the clean-up drive will get any further under McGranery than it has moved in the four months since Mr. Truman hastened back from a Key West, Fla., vacation to take "drastic action."

They said the ouster of Morris, who had tried to circulate financial questionnaires to McGrath and other top officials, showed that the anti-corruption program was never anything more than a "sham."

German Industrial Blast Kills Four

DUESSELDORF, Germany, April 4 (Reuters).—Four persons were killed and about 100 injured when a chlorine gas container exploded in a cellulose plant at Walsum, in the Ruhr, during the night.

Many of the injured were reported on the danger list, most of them poisoned by chlorine gas. The explosion occurred at 2 a.m. Police and firemen wearing gas masks rushed to the factory. Police warned the 22,000 population of Walsum of "acute danger from chlorine gas," but gave an all clear at 5:20 a.m.

Cause of the explosion was not immediately determined. The gas was used to bleach cellulose for the production of paper, one of the staple industries of the town.

Condensed from CP, AP, and UP Dispatches

SENTENCED—In Baltimore five Communists and a party lawyer today were sentenced to prison terms of two to five years and each fined $1,000 for conspiring to advocate violent overthrow of the United States government.

Philip Frankfeld, Moscow-trained district party leader, received the maximum penal sentence of five years.

Other sentences: Regina Frankfeld, Frankfeld's wife, two years; George A. Meyers, former textile worker and Frankfeld's successor as district chairman, four years; Leroy H. Wood, party chairman of the District of Columbia, Maurice L. Braverman and Mrs. Dorothy Rose Blumberg, three years each.

The maximum sentence is five years in prison and $10,000 fine.

FEARS—In Capetown fears of racial strife shadowed the gaily planned celebration today of the 30th birthday of the first white settlement in South Africa.

Tens of thousands of men, women and children have converged on this mother city for the event, arranged by the Nationalist government of Prime Minister Daniel Malan.

But most of the country's non-whites—Negroes, Asiatics and Cape Coloreds, persons of mixed blood—have boycotted the festival in protest against the government's white supremacy policy. A few hundred non-whites have turned up but their numbers fall far short of what the organizers expected.

FLOODING—In Chicago spring floods continued to harass areas in Montana, the Dakotas and Minnesota today with hundreds forced from their homes.

Water was up to 10 feet deep in some streets in Havre, Mont., where an estimated 1,200 persons have been driven from their homes by floodwaters from the Milk River. National Guardsmen patrolled the northern district of the city. State officials sought federal flood relief help.

About 200 persons left their homes at Chinook, 20 miles downstream from Havre. However, a dike kept flood waters of the Milk from the town.

Other flood areas included Ft. Pierre, S.D., where the Missouri River was two feet above flood stage; Mott and Hazen, N.D., and in lowlands along the Redwood River in southwestern Minnesota.

IRKED—In Ottawa a Nova Scotia senator said Thursday night Canada should assure American tourists that their dollars would be accepted at par with Canadian money which now is worth 2 per cent more than U.S. funds.

It drew fire from another member of the Upper House, however. He said Americans shouldn't expect to get that kind of preferred treatment in Canada when Canadians who go to the United States often have to pay premiums to get U.S. currency.

Sen. Gordon B. Isnor (L. Nova Scotia) said that the tourist industry "is the third biggest source of American dollars we have, and we should do all we can to keep money coming into the country."

Labor Scores Triumph In British Elections

LONDON, April 4 (AP).—The Labor Party handed Prime Minister Churchill's Conservatives a sharp setback in the triennial English county council elections, returns showed today.

Worst drubbing suffered by the Conservatives in Thursday's voting came in London County, where Labor won 92 out of the 129 seats and Churchill's followers only 37. In the old council they held 84 apiece. The odd man was a Liberal.

Conservative leaders described the vote as an inevitable reaction from Churchill's victory in the national election last October.

"Our opponents have exploited the difficulties of the nation for which they themselves are

SEVERED—Russia has broken off diplomatic relations with Cuba because customs officers at Havana refused to let two Soviet couriers bring in luggage without inspection.

A Soviet note Thursday night charged that Cuba had violated normal diplomatic procedure in declining to allow the couriers customs-free entrance on March 21 after they flew here from Mexico. They returned there by plane, their baggage unopened.

Cuba contended that it had not broken international diplomatic rules because the Soviet government had not recognized the new Cuban government of Gen. Fulgencio Batista. Batista seized power last month in a quick coup.

EASY!—In Washington Queen Juliana of The Netherlands today asked Americans not to "hurry us too much" in developing a United Europe.

"It takes time, and there is still a lot of misunderstanding," she said. "But I do trust it will come into being."

Too much haste, the visiting queen said, "is not good for a healthy growth of the young plant of European unity."

She made her plea for understanding and patience with Europe's problems in an address prepared for a luncheon for Washington press, radio and television correspondents.

LIKE—In Paris U.S. Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, "like for President" campaign manager, called on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today to tell him that he can win the Republican nomination without returning home to campaign.

The senator arrived at Eisenhower's Supreme Atlantic Pact command headquarters at 9:50 a.m. and was admitted at once to the general's office.

Sources close to Eisenhower said Lodge and the general probably would confer all morning on the general's political plans and then lunch together.

Nothing Lost
As Burglars
Enter Store

Burglars broke into Clark and Cordick's feed store at Bay and Douglas late Thursday night but nothing was reported missing after a quick check by the manager.

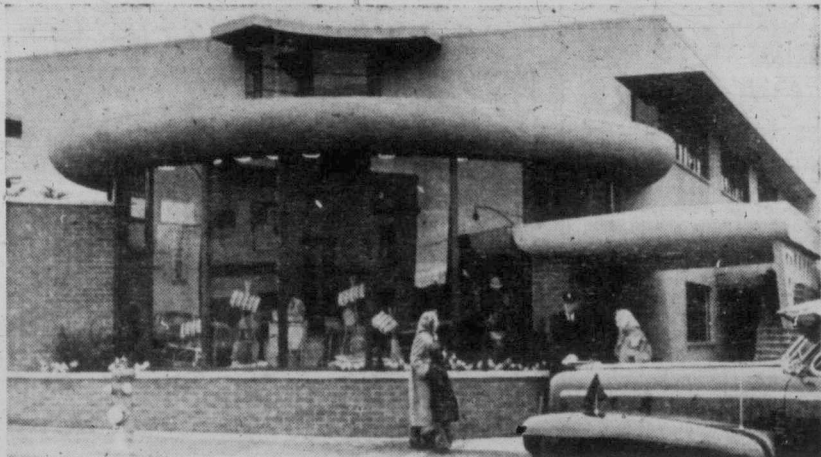

Entry was made through a large sliding door on Bay. The prowlers left after breaking a window in a communicating door leading to the Rockgas Co., next door.

Earlier, police received a report from Mrs. Dorothy Burgess, 2450 Quadra, that a thief had reached through a bedroom window and stolen a jewel case containing costume jewelry and a watch valued at about $20 Tuesday night.

Prowlers, who broke into the Victoria Liberal Association in the Central Building ransacked three office drawers and filing cabinets but took nothing.

Newly-Opened Centre for Blind Here Part of Vision of Sightless Veteran

Victoria's 160 blind residents now have, as a second home, one of the finest and most modern service centres in Canada.

The handsome building, at 1609 Blanshard, designed by Victoria architect, John Di Castri, was officially opened Thursday afternoon by Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace at a brilliant ceremony attended by hundreds who work for the blind here.

"It's good to live in a generation that provides for people who cannot provide for themselves,"

City Drops New Street Light Plan

Plans for a new $6,500 street lighting development on north Douglas Street went out the window at an estimates meeting of city council's street lighting committee Thursday.

In fact by the time the committee got through there was nothing left of city electrical engineer Ken Reid's $12,250 in extraordinary expenditures but $2,000 for new lighting units.

Reid sought improved lighting both on Douglas from Hillside to city limits, route of the proposed new highway, and on Blanshard from the arena to Hillside, which is a newly-improved street.

Ordinary and extraordinary estimates totaling $123,250 were presented to the committee.

They sliced $4,000 off the ordinary estimates, including $1,250 from salaries for casual labor and $1,500 from a $3,500 estimate for radio communication.

The committee felt in view of the city's financial position, the extraordinary items, while desirable, could be eliminated. The pendant luminaires which passed at $2,000 will replace cluster lights on Pandora, View, Johnson and Vancouver.

Li-Col. E. A. Baker, O.B.E., M.C., first officer to be blinded in the First World War and now managing director of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in Toronto, paid tribute to Capt. M. C. Robinson, Vancouver, national director for the C.N.I.B.

"Every blind person in B.C. owes 'Robbie' something," he said. "Although he cannot see, he had the vision to realize the coming needs of the blind."

The key to the building was given to the architect by Peter Bove on behalf of the builders, Commonwealth Construction Co. Ltd. Di Castri then gave it to Eric Brettell, chairman, who presented it to Miss Dorothy Stark, representing the C.N.I.B. management.

DEDICATION BY BISHOP

Dedication was made by Bishop Harold E. Sexton.

Following the ceremony, guests toured the building. The auditorium, furnished by the Victoria Gyro Club, is finished in plum and yellow tones with natural wood panelling and silvered steel beams.

There is a modern kitchen, lounge with comfortable chairs and chesterfields, and two rooms for occupational therapy.

Showroom and offices are at the front.

The new building was open for inspection this afternoon and will be open again tonight at 6:30.

Saturday visiting hours will be 2:30 to 5:30 and 6:30 to 8:30.

Attending the ceremony were Mrs. Wallace, Mayor Claude L. Harrison and Brig-Gen. J. A. Clark, C.M.G., D.S.O., Q.C., chairman of the C.N.I.B. western board of directors.

Mrs. E. Watling, president of the White Can Club, concluded the event with a vocal solo, "Bless This House."

A Smile From the Sphinx

ABOUT ONCE A YEAR THE SPHINX of Moscow permits himself a brief smile which only serves to hide his secret. In his favorite method of communication Marshal Stalin sends a cryptic message to some American newspapermen, declaring that a third world war is no closer than it was, that a meeting of the heads of the great powers possibly would be useful, that Germany should be reunited, and that communism can co-exist with democracy.

What is the meaning of his 59 carefully-chosen words? They mean at least one thing—that Stalin is attempting another peace offensive. And the purpose of that offensive is equally clear—he is trying to lull the democracies into a false sense of security and prevent them from carrying through their defense program.

This is a clever strategy and well timed. Throughout the free world the signs of weariness under the defense load are multiplying. In Britain the Bevan revolt, in Canada the C.C.F. attack on the North Atlantic Treaty, in the United States a Congress reluctant to vote foreign aid, in France economic and political confusion. This is a good time for Stalin to launch his latest dove of peace.

A good time also for the democracies to keep their powder dry. To them the lesson of the last two years should now be clear. It is that the Russians are interested only in power. When the democracies lacked power Stalin did as he pleased. When he sees them growing stronger he is willing to bargain, or at least to go through the motions of bargaining. Above all, he fears a re-armed west and will do everything in his power to prevent it.

If he is at last ready to discuss even partial settlements in the power struggle his offers should be fully considered. There is nothing to suggest that he is ready for a complete settlement but his willingness—even to settle a few outstanding issues can easily be tested.

Will he agree to an Austrian treaty? Will he agree to free elections as the first step in re-unifying Germany? Will he settle the Korean war? Will he prevent his Chinese puppets from marching into Southeast Asia?

These are the questions, among others, which the west wants answered. It should not be lulled to sleep again by 59 cabled words of reassurance from Moscow. The peace dove coos again. What of the cannon on which it perches?

Canadians Grow Richer

THE STATE OF LIFE IN CANADA, against which most Canadians are complaining, is thus summarized in "Industry," published by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The average Canadian produces more with less effort, pays heavier taxes but has more income left to spend after paying them, and actually consumes one-third more goods and services than he did at the peak of the boom in the 'twenties.

This is not the opinion of one of the government's friends (the Manufacturers' Association being highly critical of many government policies) but is simply a summary of figures compiled by the impartial Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The Bureau reports that from 1928, just before the great depression, to 1950, the physical volume of Canada's production rose by 90 per cent. By 1950, of course, the population had increased by more than 40 per cent. But even on a per capita basis, real output was rising by about 1.3 per cent per year—and this in spite of a large reduction in average working hours.

In the same period, however, the state took an ever-increasing share of the ordinary Canadian's income in taxes.

The average Canadian, as "Industry" notes, "paid 5.5 per cent of his income in direct personal taxes in 1950 as against 1.3 per cent in 1928." When indirect taxes are considered government in its three branches is now taking about a third of the national income. The average Canadian hands about 33 per cent of every earned dollar over to government.

Still, in 1950 Canadians had more money to spend than ever and, despite high prices, they bought more goods than ever. "In real terms, after allowing for higher prices," the Manufacturers' Association concludes, "personal expenditure on consumer goods and services rose by 93 per cent between 1928 and 1950. Even when the population increase is taken into account, the average Canadian consumed 38 per cent more goods and services in 1950 than in 1928."

The nation, in short, has grown steadily richer despite a great depression, a war and an inflation. It would be still richer today if about ten per cent of its production were not going into weapons which, though essential, cannot be consumed.

'Come Unto Me ...'

CLERGYMEN TRADITIONALLY MAY refuse to conduct a marriage service for any person whom they deem to be unfit to receive the church's blessing. Some denominations consider divorced persons in this category, while known criminals and wrongdoers would no doubt be found unacceptable to many church officials.

The criterion is essentially a moral one, and as such is respected as the prerogative of the minister. The case reported from Keremeos, B.C., however, appears in a different light. A Canadian Press item says that a United Church minister refused his church for the marriage of a couple because the bridegroom's occupation was listed as bartender.

In this rejection he would appear to have imposed a social or economic ban, rather than a moral one, an arbitrary discrimination against a trade that is accepted as legal by the law and the public in general.

One is led to wonder whether the minister in question would have shown similar disapproval of the carpenter who constructed the bar or the janitor who sweeps it out. Would he have closed his church doors to a wealthy brewer or distillery owner, a bottle manufacturer, or the landlord on whose property the bartender carried his livelihood? Would they have upheld the "spiritual" prestige and dignity of the church which the minister felt the bartender imperiled?

The minister's right to determine whether or not he would perform the ceremony is not questioned, but he applied too wide a judgment in straying from strictly moral grounds into the realm of legal economic pursuits. Sympathy must inevitably be with the bartender, who, incidentally, drove to Princeton, where the ceremony was performed in another church of the same denomination.

Boys Don't Want To Be Pampered

WHEN HE SPOKE TO ASSEMBLED Scouts and Scout officials here the other night, Jackson Dodds, deputy chief Scout for Canada, made pointed reference to the need to keep adventure in the movement if it is to hold the interest of young Canadians.

He described the apathy which developed in one region when a camp ground was covered with elaborate halls, buildings and recreation centres by a well-meaning service club. He followed that description with the words: "You have only to look at the completely blissful face of a boy absorbed in the task of cooking a simple outdoor meal over a small wood fire and you have the answer."

Mr. Dodds' remarks contain a warning to those good-hearted people who wish to do too much for the youngsters, and furnish a guide for recreation planners in general.

It is to the credit of the young Scouts in the region of which Mr. Dodds spoke that they wanted more of the simplicity, less of the pampering that modern conveniences lend to urban living and from which people, young and adult, escape to the comparative wilderness. The boys might have been given an even more cosy environment in their community centres in town than was available at the camping ground. Why, if that was the case, would they go out to the over-civilized wilderness?

It is to the credit of the parks and recreation sections of the B.C. Forest Service that its leaders understand this attitude. They know that different people desire different facilities, and they understand the high rating given to wilderness attractions. That is justification for the policy they pursue in parks planning—reserving some areas in their natural condition while others are developed to meet the desires of those interested in less rugged vocational pursuits.

Picking Up the Stroke

IN THESE DAYS OF RAPID CHANGE there is something heartening and reassuring in the observance of tradition, and high in the category of comforting events is the annual Oxford-Cambridge boat race.

So many years has this classic contest been held, so resolutely have the successive crews set themselves to the rigors of training and the grueling test of competition, missing only the war years, that the Commonwealth may well set its figurative clocks by the event.

A quarter of a million spectators normally turn out along the banks of the Thames to watch the crews struggle from Putney to Mortlake. Millions more, few of whom can ever have stepped in a shell or pulled a sweep oar, follow the event with close interest each year. Like the great cricket classics, the football finals, and on this side of the Atlantic, the World Series or the Stanley Cup playoffs, the Boat Race is a safety valve for a hard-pressed humanity.

In these contests each man can become a partisan without risk to himself. With his chosen crew he can labor, in theory, over the course, can celebrate a great victory, or forget a defeat in hopes for the next year.

For a while his personal troubles can be merged in the greater contest. They may even achieve, for a time, the sense of detachment which is one of the sporting event's best features. For deeply as the devotee may become involved in the contest, when the worst comes to the worst, and his favorite crew is shipping water far in the rear, he can recall that this is, after all, only a game, a mere interlude in more important things.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

APRIL may make you think of fools or St. George or Shakespeare. It makes me think of all those, plus my London charwoman. It was one April when I was packing up to leave England. I was wondering how on earth to fit all my accumulated junk into my boxes, even though I had bought three new packing cases and two new trunks. And just then an old friend turned up to give me a parting present. It was a plaster bust of Shakespeare, and rather a big one, so as to bring out what Mark Twain called William's "deep, deep, subtle, subtle, subtle expression of a bladder."

Horrible though it was, I couldn't keep it. It had to go. So I gave it to my char. Maybe she didn't like Bill as much as I do, but she liked plaster busts better. And she referred to that month as Ay-pry, which is something I'd never heard before; it sounds frightfully Shakespearean, somehow, and it was mostly on the strength of this refreshing word she won the plaster bust.

SMOKE SCREEN

FOR almost a month now, a little clipping has been staring up at me from my desk. On the strength of an African doctor's opinions, this clipping tells me daily that my smoking career falls into six stages: Pleasure at 20, routine at 30, addiction at 40, heart poison at 50, other heart poisons at 55, and a death certificate at 60 or after. That "or after" stuff is alarming. Heavens, it might mean any of us. Also, if you don't smoke, are you refused a death certificate?

This doctor, one J. Mibashan of Cape Town, doesn't say how much smoke is going to produce these results on what physique. So the whole thing is frightfully nebulous, not to say smoky. He doesn't say anything about the strength of the tobacco, the condition of it, the time and place and manner of its use, and so on. Obviously, a barman inhaling bad tobacco in a stuffy pub before meals is going to do himself more harm than a farmer smoking good tobacco outdoors after meals without inhaling. By the way, barmen die quicker than any others in England... not from drink, particularly, but from bad air.

DR. Mibashan fails to mention my own six stages, which have been roughly these: Cubes at 10, causing me to suffer from pride, the worst of the Seven Deadly Sins and the hardest to cure; stolen cigarettes and cigars, pinched from my father along with three quarts of whisky, at 11, making me not only a criminal but an invalid... by the way, I think I told you about that whisky a year or two ago... we drank some with raspberry juice and enjoyed it very much too, and we sold the rest in a punch at a garden party at a nickel a glass and were thrilled and surprised at the rapid sale and heavy receipt of nickels; well, my third stage was showing off with a pipe at 18, smoking fancy imported tobacco bought with my allowance... this caused me to fail in the purchase of trousers, the repair of shoes, and other things my allowance was meant to cover, and I also bought smaller lunches at college, and what with being run down and exposed to the weather, I suffered from bronchial troubles.

The fourth stage was buying tobacco with my own money, which made me a lot wiser though just as broke. The fifth stage was burning holes in my clothes as I got more absent-minded (due to a brain weakened by smoke); sometimes I burned holes in myself, too. The sixth stage is buying cigarettes for my wife, which is very subversive and unfair to me; tobacco has ruined my conscience, you see.

Yes, and for the last little while I have been smoking nine-cent Italian cigars in between pipes... they look frightening but people tell me they smell worse. One of my brothers, who knows a lot about cigars, took three puffs and lost his dinner. I know nothing about cigars, so I am able to enjoy them fine. I'll let you know about the next six stages later.

DR. Mibashan, roaring like the bull of Bashan, says that if you injected the nicotine from one cigar into your veins, it would kill you twice over. So just use half a cigar, boys, don't waste them. And don't put cigars into your veins, anyway; it's a silly habit. Try smoking them instead; in this way most of the nicotine is burnt away and never reaches your lips at all, thus fooling DR. Mibashan. What nicotine does reach you is partly counteracted by the tea you drink. In the sixth stage of tea-drinking this is rather important, because you need a little nicotine to counteract the tea, too.

No More Glamor

(From an address by Hon. L. B. Pearson.)

I AM for the time being, the member of the government whose special ministerial responsibility is external affairs and the international relations of our country. The work of a foreign office and the diplomatic service was once considered to be somewhat glamorous and not too exacting. The glamor has departed (there is nothing romantic about being called a pig by Mr. Vishinsky), and any glamour that might have existed has gone too.

Furthermore, the curtain of mystery that previously surrounded diplomacy and foreign relations, sometimes with deplorable results—but sometimes with good—has been torn away. The green baize table, the subdued lights, the formal attire, and the courteous confidential consultations in the conference room have been replaced by the United Nations committee with its business-suited members wrangling, sometimes violently, not only in front of 200 or 300 newspapermen, which is terrifying enough, but in front of a battery of television cameras, which is far worse.

The Weather Hasn't Changed That Much

Under Our Roof

By JOHN RHODES STURDY

HAMISH, Little Augie and I arrived in the city of Vancouver today, en route to Montreal where Percy Skeffington-Smuts, the brother of Col. S. Skeffington-Smuts (Ret.) is in the clutches of the mean landlord of our old apartment-house back there. Our ultimate object is to rescue Percy, but at the moment we are more concerned with bed and board.

(Our voyage across the Gulf of Georgia in a rowboat will probably go down as one of the great stories of Men Against the Sea. Unfortunately, when we were washed ashore we lost most of the money, and when eventually we reached Victoria our first step was to ask the editor of the newspaper for an advance.

He didn't give us any money, but he nearly tore the telephone off getting us transportation out of Victoria.

"I don't mind you writing about those characters of yours when they're on your island," he said, looking white-faced and grim, "but don't—I beg of you, don't ever again bring them into Victoria. Especially that Little Augie. Ugh!"

So we arrived in Vancouver, by plane no less (the pilot, on landing, immediately turned in his wings and is now driving a taxi) and here we were with very little money and wearing clothes that looked much the worse for having been subjected to hours in salt water.

It is a long walk into town from the airport, but we had to conserve our last few dollars, and, anyway, Hamish said the streetcar fares were being raised and he was not quite sure of the date.

"There is one thing we must do," I said, "and that is get a hotel room for the night." We hadn't slept since we left the island, and so I pointed out a hotel and suggested we try it.

"You know," said Hamish thoughtfully, "I read somewhere that this hotel has a very family rate. It doesn't charge anything for children."

"I'll admit," I said sarcastically, "that you and Little Augie have the minds of children, but you don't look like it."

But Hamish shook his head and pointed at Little Augie. I hadn't really noticed the former blind-pig king for some time, but now I stared. The sea water had shrunk Little Augie's suit until he looked as though he were in sort pants. Little Augie is not very big.

"Hamish," I said, fascinated by the thought, "I think you have something."

"Now wait a minute, pal," protested Little Augie.

We ignored him. "What about the mother?" I asked Hamish, and Hamish told me that Little Augie and I would go in and register and he would stay outside and sneak in later. I could tell the desk clerk that I was expecting my wife to join me.

I had to haul Little Augie by the scruff of the neck into the hotel.

"One double room, family rate, please," I said to the room clerk.

"Is that your child?" he asked in awe, looking at Little Augie.

"Certainly," I said. "And my wife will be along later."

"Well," said the clerk, "I wouldn't blame her if she stayed away."

"Lissen, punk—" began Master Augie, and I gave him a kick on his bare shin. Anyway, they gave us the room and I headed for the bath immediately, anxious to rid myself of the salt that was in my eyes and ears, and after I had had a good rubbing I returned to the bedroom. Little Augie was gone.

It was then that the telephone rang. The manager was on the other end of the line and he sounded somewhat agitated. "I hate to call you about this, sir," he said, "but your son is in the beer parlor, setting them up for the house."

"That can't be," I said. "He hasn't any money."

"He has now, sir. He's been teaching the other patrons something called the match game and appears to be winning steadily. I'm sorry, sir, but you know the laws about minors—and, of course, gambling! Would you mind coming down and getting your son, sir?" He lowered his voice. "And, by the way—strictly between the two of us—it is true what he says about Florabel being a cinch in the third race?"

Well, I managed to get Little Augie out of the beer parlor and we were just starting for the elevator when an old lady came through the front entrance, shouted, "My darling little boy!" and flung her arms around Little Augie.

"Leggo!" yelled Little Augie. "I'm not your boy!"

"Shut up," the old lady whispered. "It's me."

And so it was—Hamish. I guess we're in. The whole family.

Health Note

Edmonton Journal

Joseph Stalin's health has replaced the atom bomb as the favorite subject for rumors. The latest is featured by a report in the British magazine Intelligence Digest that the Soviet dictator has become a "chronic invalid" and may die at any time. The Digest has a reputation for getting accurate information from behind the iron curtain, and this time there may be something in the story. Stalin is now 73, and he has lived a life of exceptional violence and stress which must have made him older than his years. It is quite possible, and indeed probable, that his heart has given out under the strain, and that he has to take it easy in his Crimean villa, with only rare visits to Moscow.

Even if this is so, however, it by no means follows that his death is imminent, or that his grip on the Soviet empire is relaxing.

"And He came to the Mount of Olives." Luke 22:39

The Supper over, He went apart... To Mount of Olives... In agonizing prayer and see... If this cup may depart from me... But as He sweated blood and prayed... There came false Judas who betrayed... His Lord for silver... No one kept... The watch, for His disciples slept... Why did His friends their Lord forsake?... Let us from that a lesson take.

Rocky Point Sanctuary

ON MARCH 11th a brief was presented to the Victoria Natural History Society pointing out that the Dominion government had taken over Rocky Point for the purpose of establishing a naval arsenal, suggesting that the area was unsuitable for this purpose, and advocating that it be converted into a national park and wildlife sanctuary. The society promised to give the matter careful consideration.

It is not within our province to comment upon the action of the Dominion government in securing this site for whatever purpose it has in mind with a view to national defense; we are content to leave tactical matters in the hands of those who have the technical knowledge.

With regard to the desirability of the area as a wildlife sanctuary and for recreational use, however, we are in hearty accord. The features which make the site so desirable from this point of view may be summarized as follows: located in a region of great scenic beauty, the tract consisting of some 3,000 acres, is readily accessible by automobile and by sea-going craft; its topography is most varied, it is bounded on three sides by the sea, and its shoreline includes numerous coves and beaches; in correspondence with the varied topography its vegetation is of numerous types—Douglas fir forest, probably the largest oak-madrone association left to us, natural open grassland, swampland, etc.—this would make a splendid range for herbivorous mammals, and combined with the fact that the area is on a "fly-way" of migratory birds—a marvelous bird-sanctuary; the water supply is excellent—numerous streams afford good drinking water as well as the means of enlarging existing swamps for waterfowl, establishing swimming pools, etc.; numerous rock mounds mark ancient Indian burial places—such mounds are fast disappearing from our midst as civilization encroaches; the richness of the sea-life of its shores is remarkable, making it an ideal location for the establishment of a marine research laboratory; the excellence of the salmon fishing offshore would be a great attraction to vacationists.

Of the necessity, in our modern world, of unspoiled tracts for the preservation of wildlife and for recreational purposes it should be unnecessary to speak, yet the fact remains that we are years behind our neighbors to the south in reserving such areas.

Soon, in southern Vancouver Island there will be none to reserve. Hitherto, the site under discussion has been barred to the public through private ownership; now, it will be absolutely closed. If the government requires it for defense purposes for a limited period only, steps might be taken to secure it as a national park upon the termination of this; if it is to be used permanently, one of our most accessible regions of natural beauty is irrevocably lost.

On behalf of the executive committee of the Victoria Natural History Society,

JEFFREY A. CUNNINGHAM,
President.

Used to It

Montreal Gazette

The whole theory of inoculation is based upon the fact that living matter can develop its own immunity if given small doses of what it will eventually be forced to fight.

A child who is given some respect for authority, some responsibility, some punishment when deserved, may be better able to meet the demands of a life that is real and earnest in later years. He won't like it now, of course, but one day he will come to realize that "Sweet are the uses of adversity."

Ups and Downs

By BRIAN TOBIN

"FROM London," said the Elevator Man, "comes news that strikes at the very foundations of mankind. Reports of atomic bombs, death rays, germ warfare and such are bad enough. But this is worse. A news item says that someone has set up a government school to cure laziness. Men who've been on relief so long they can't find a job, lost all ambition to work, and all knowledge of how to do it, are lured out there. They're given harmless little tasks at first, odd chores around the school that don't really seem like work. But little by little the atmosphere changes. Before they know it the victims are working in the garden. And by the time they've become immunized to that, they find themselves laboring in a nearby factory. Like some slowly developing disease, labor has put its clutch upon them, with probably life-long effects. Going down."

"Something," said the Elevator Man, "ought to be done about that. Surprisingly, man's most sacred right is being taken from him—the right to do nothing. If this thing spreads there's no knowing where it will end. If lazy people as a class become extinct, what will happen to the world? What will happen to the thousands who make their living producing labor-saving devices, the thousands who maintain holiday resorts, the millions who are kept busy happy by a falsely-induced feeling that their activity makes them better than the man who does nothing? What will become of our struggle for progress, which is basically designed to spare us work and help the ambitious man to achieve what the lazy man already has attained? Lower main!"

"Surely," said the Elevator Man, "the British government hasn't thought this thing through. They can't know what they're doing. A world of eternally busy people would become a hell. Only a good leavening of lazy people now makes it bearable, and with them wiped out our plight will be serious. No less an authority than the head of Chicago University once said that 'when I feel an urge to indulge in physical activity I lie down quietly until it passes.' Carried too far, this London business will result in the dreamers, the recliners, the dozers, the contemplaters, the truly happy people on this worry-ridden globe, disappearing. It's a threat to the eternal hopes of every one of us, and it should be stopped right away."

LAW'S QUIRK OPENS DOOR TO FREEDOM

Jury Directed to Acquit Prisoner

Charles H. Lumley, Salt Spring Island logger, walked out of Assize Court Thursday afternoon a slightly bewildered but happy, free man. Lumley was acquitted on a charge of retaining two logging blocks and eight chains allegedly stolen from William Coops last August 8.

Crown counsel A. de B. McPhillips called witnesses who gave direct evidence that Lumley stole the goods himself. In view of this, Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson instructed the jury it could not find accused guilty of retaining stolen goods, as charged.

His Lordship explained that under Canadian law a man could only be found guilty of retaining stolen goods after it had been proved he received the goods first and then found out they had been stolen but kept them anyway.

He said there were more serious charges for men who stole and men who received goods they knew to be stolen.

While juries are permitted to reduce a more serious charge to one of a less nature, they are not permitted to find a man guilty of a more serious crime than that with which he is charged.

For Lumley it was the end of his second trial in Assize Court. Last fall he was tried for stealing the logging equipment but at that time the jury acquitted him of theft but found him guilty of retaining. He was sentenced to serve 18 months in prison but sought an appeal.

In Appeal Court it was argued the verbatim transcript of the original Assize Court trial was in error, so a new trial was ordered.

In view of the first jury's decision, the charge was left at retaining for the second trial.

E. M. Levy was Lumley's counsel.

Income Tax
Officials Face
Fraud Counts
FORT WILLIAM, April 4 (CP).—Joseph Seguin and Israel Grosman, former income tax assessors here, Thursday were committed to trial by a higher court on seven charges including breach of trust and fraud. Charges included defrauding Mrs. Marjorie Howard of $3,000 and with uttering a forged document, purporting to bear the signature of W. A. Blennerhassett, head of the local income tax office. The alleged offences took place in late 1950.

Chief witness Thursday was Mrs. Howard, who said she was told she owned $6,000 in income tax arrears. Mrs. Howard said Seguin suggested he would settle for $3,000. She identified Grosman as the man who accompanied Seguin and said she was alone with the two men when the $3,000 was handed over. The receipt allegedly given her was produced in court.

Jack Muez, local administrative officer for the revenue department testified he checked the income tax office records and found "no payment was ever received by the department."

The Crown also charges that Seguin and Grosman did not turn in $3,500 of $5,000 they allegedly collected from another woman, Mrs. Florence Hodgkins.

When she awakened, two hours later, she could see again. Carol's story was told Thursday by her guardian, Mrs. Sid Hardy of Chilliwack, B.C., and confirmed by the child's doctor.

The little girl lost her sight in a train-car crash Feb. 23 which killed her Dutch-immigrant parents and two brothers. Cora was taken to hospital where she lingered in a coma for four weeks. Doctors found she had been blinded. They suspected a skull fracture had either cut or pinched the optic nerve.

Then, as Mrs. Hardy tells it: "I put Cora to bed as usual just after her lunch Friday. She was no different than she had been ever since she came home from hospital."

"She woke up two hours later, sat up and looked around and said, 'Hardy' which is the name she called me by when the family lived on our farm."

"She acted very strange and kept looking around and calling for 'Mummy.' She wouldn't come to me or my husband even though she had while she was blind."

"However, in the last few days she has warmed up and is as friendly as can be."

Where Victoria Dean Will Become Bishop of Calgary

In the Cathedral Church of the Redeemer, Calgary, on the morning of April 25, a numerous gathering of bishops, clergy, laity, civic and provincial officials will share in the solemn consecration service which will see George R. Calvert, dean of Christ Church Cathedral here, become new bishop of the Diocese of Calgary.

Dean Calvert to Become Bishop Of Calgary on St. Mark's Day

By W. S. HENDERSON

The Primate of Canada, the Archbishop of Rupert's Land and five other bishops, besides a number of clergy will take part on St. Mark's Day, April 25, in the solemn service of consecration in which Very Rev. G. R. Calvert, at present Dean of the Diocese of British Columbia and rector of Christ Church Cathedral here, will become Bishop of Calgary.

The consecrator will be Archbishop L. R. Sherman (Winnipeg), who himself was Bishop of Calgary from 1927 to 1943 and who since his translation has had Winnipeg as his see city. Calgary is a diocese in the Ecclesiastical Province of Rupert's Land, of which Archbishop Sherman is Metropolitan.

An even more unusual feature of the ceremonial will come when Dean Calvert is presented for consecration by Archbishop Barfoot of Edmonton, Primate of Canada, whose acquaintance with the dean extends back to their college days at Wycliffe in Toronto. This is a rare occurrence in the episcopal succession.

In addition to the two archbishops, the bishops who will participate in the consecration service are: Bishop Martin of Saskatchewan, Bishop Loft-house of Keewatin, Bishop Norris of Brandon, Bishop Pierce of Athabasca and Bishop Steer of Saskatchewan.

The consecration service will be held in the morning at 10.30. During the ceremonial he will receive the cathedral crozier. In the evening will come the enthronement.

The new bishop will also receive a pectoral cross and a ring.

The Diocese of Calgary originally was part of the Diocese of Saskatchewan, whose bishop was responsible for its inception. As the population of the prairie increased, and new towns sprang up, it became plain the time had come to make a division. Bishop Pinkham continued to administer both dioceses until proper provision could be made for the new diocesan head. When that was done in 1903 Bishop Pinkham elected to become the first Bishop of Calgary.

Judge Wilson's official title is Imperial Potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order, Imperial Council of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. In business life, he is judge of the state probate court of Massachusetts.

Judge Wilson was welcomed here Friday by A. R. Wakelam, president of the Victoria Shrine Club, and J. G. Foster, Potentate's representative to the Gizeh Temple, and other Shrine officials. He is on a tour of the organization's 17 hospitals and some 164 temples in Canada and the United States.

The Shriners are a top rank of the Masonic Order. They are famous for the establishment and maintenance of crippled children's hospitals.

The association requests that the provincial government take steps to set up a meat inspection service to pass on animals before slaughter and check the carcasses after.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren wrote the board lauding the work of the rodent control section. He said it had completely eliminated rats from Beacon Hill Park.

C.N.R. Wants New Deal In Financial Structure

OTTAWA, April 4 (CP). — Once more in the red ink, the Canadian National Railways is looking to Parliament to put it into the black.

The government-owned company has come up with its customary debt-enforced deficit despite a big operating surplus, and it wants Parliament to legislate it into a business-like status.

The vital statistics: The C.N.R. had the biggest operating revenue in history, $624,834,000, or $71,000,000 higher than 1950. It had an operating surplus of $44,683,000. But it wound up with a deficit of $15,031,000.

The deficit, despite a 12 per cent increase in freight rates during 1951, was up from $3,261,000 the previous year.

To beat the recurrent deficits, the company expressed the hope in its report, tabled in the Commons, that Parliament this year will implement the report of the Royal Commission on transportation calling for a new deal in its debt-burdened financial structure. That, on unofficial estimates, would have transformed the 1951 deficit into a surplus of around $8,000,000.

SIXTH IN ROW

The deficit was the sixth in a row for the C.N.R., which always has earned its way on an operating basis but has found itself hamstrung by the interest payments on its big debt. The government-held loans alone amount to $750,000,000, which costs the company about $23,000,000 a year in interest.

"It is expected," the report said, "that the measure of relief recommended by the commission will be made available to the railway in 1952."

Most of the National line's figures this year — outside of the deficit — were record ones. The gross revenue figure of $624,834,000 largely based on record freight traffic that yielded $499,000,000. The freight-traffic volume was a record $9,600,000 tons. There was also a peak total of 36,400,000 revenue ton-miles carried over the 24,000-mile system.

Passenger traffic was up, and so was the railway's big hotel business and that of its communications system.

The revenue of the Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships went up. The operating loss for that company in 1951 was $31,576, compared with $601,432 a year earlier.

Pearkes Raps B.C. Defense

Nanaimo Member Replies as Defense Minister Asks Initial Approval of Immense Budget

OTTAWA, April 4. (BUP)—Opposition parties demanded more economy and better military protection for the British Columbia coast as Parliament's defense debate entered its second day today.

Defense Minister Brooke Claxton, seeking initial approval for a 1952-53 defense budget of $2,106,000,000 told the House Thursday Canada would designate 24 naval vessels for North Atlantic Treaty Organization service this year.

Opposition defense critic Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes (P.C. Nanaimo), said the west coast, which he called "the soft underbelly" of Canada, needed protection by a modern aircraft carrier. He also urged a tight control over civilian employment and unnecessary expenditures by the defense department.

All parties in the Commons supported the broad objective of the government's program but it was too early in the debate for clear lines to be drawn on specific points of difference. The Commons had to adjourn 20 minutes early Thursday night because of a lack of speakers ready to carry on the debate.

24 NAVAL VESSELS
Claxton said Canada's N.A.T.O. contribution in 1952 would be the brigade now stationed at Hanover, Germany; four squadrons of R.C.A.F. fighters, two of which are now in England and a third ready to go soon; and the 24 naval vessels. He did not specify the class of ships to be made available to N.A.T.O., but they were expected to be mainly subchasers and mine sweepers.

By 1954, Claxton said, Canada would have "about 52" vessels in the N.A.T.O. fleet, 12 squadrons of aircraft, and the brigade which makes up one-third of a division of ground forces, available for western Europe's defense.

However, Pearkes reiterated his stand that the ground forces should be mobile hard-hitting armored and technical units rather than infantry. He also repeated his declaration that the nation should keep its forces in Europe under constant review to keep them from becoming tied down to specific duties.

C.C.F. Leader M. J. Coldwell said his 13-man Socialist group would support the defense budget but still maintained the nation should be spending more for economic aid to western Europe and other countries. His party's censure motion on that argument was defeated 172 to 21 at the close of the foreign affairs debate.

Though the defense debate got off to an unspectacular start, opposition groups bridled at what they regarded as a challenge by Claxton not to criticize the program for 1952 by using hindsight on past defense accomplishments.

CRITIC GROUP GROWS
Claxton said there was virtually unanimous support for the defense program, but there was a group of critics growing who complained "yes, but something more of this, something less of that, something sooner, something later, something else instead."

"One thing that is likely to become evident," he said, "is that with the advantage of hindsight some people will begin to say that things were being done too big and too soon rather than too little and too late."

Pearkes said opposition groups had to be critical of the government's defense policy mainly on past experience because "we heard about what has been done in the past, but we do find it difficult to know what is going to be done in the future."

Coldwell said that Claxton's attitude was not the one the government should use in approaching Parliament.

"I think it is the duty of this House to inquire as to whether we are doing too much of this or too little of that in order that we may know we are doing the things we wish to do most economically and most efficiently," he said.

An attitude of complacency—that the government is always right—and of resentment of any criticism that may be offered is wrong," Coldwell added.

TOKYO, April 4 (CP).—Reinforcements for Canada's troops in Korea arrived at Yokohama today.

Other troops aboard will be held in reserve in Japan to await a call for Korean duty. They disembarked for the rail journey to their camp at Kure.

Bevan Deals With World Peace in Book

By RONALD MACLURKIN

LONDON, April 4 (Reuters).—Aneurin Bevan, stormy petrel whose views on rearmament came near splitting the Labor party, came up with a plan for world peace today.

The peace proposal was the highlight of Bevan's political testament, his book entitled "In Place of Fear," published here today.

Whatever the chances of the proposal—bringing peace to the world, its concept offers little hope of bringing peace within the Labor party.

What he wants the world to do is to mark off a set date on the calendar on which both east and west would put an end to their arms drive.

On that day, he proposes, all countries, including Russia, should divert some of their defense spending to an all-out drive for helping backward nations.

This idea is Bevan's alternative to the western arms policy which led him to resign from the former Labor government.

CANADIAN LEGISLATURES

Nova Scotia Advances Plans to Construct $23,000,000 Causeway

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

One legislature prorogued and another adjourned its session on Thursday as provincial lawmakers continued clearing up as much business as possible before Easter.

Lieut.-Gov. R. F. McWilliams prorogued the fourth session of the 23rd Manitoba legislature, the shortest since 1943. It opened Feb. 5.

Ninety bills were passed and a record budget calling for expenditures totalling $19,099,000 was approved in the quiet session.

However, the Manitoba legislature may meet in special session this summer, depending on the outcome of a power referendum in Winnipeg April 16. The city's voters will decide on a government proposal to form a provincial power monopoly. If approval is given, a special session may be called to implement the plan.

Newfoundland's legislature was adjourned until April 15, after Isaac-Mercer (L., Port de Grave) defended provincial expenditures on economic development.

A jubilant Nova Scotia legislature heard Premier Macdonald announce tenders have been called for construction of the Strait of Canso causeway. The $23,000,000 project is expected to take three years to complete. The House gave second reading, approval in principle, to a bill to impose a 10-cent royalty on gypsum.

United States trucks will be able to transport goods across southern Ontario between Detroit and Buffalo under a bill approved in principle by the Ontario legislature. Premier Frost said strict control will be kept on the trucks, which are being allowed in only as an "emergency service" to speed the transport of U.S. defense supplies.

The federal government was asked by the Saskatchewan legislature to apply the principles of orderly marketing and parity prices to all farm products. The resolution declared the international wheat agreement did not give sufficient protection to the farmer against exchange rate and other economic variations.

Alberta's Attorney-General Lucien Maynard told legislators that legal proceedings to challenge interprovincial livestock embargoes will not be taken until the results of federal-provincial talks which ended in Ottawa Wednesday are announced.

Speed Drivers Fill Saanich Court Till
Driving infractions poured $255 into the Saanich police court till on Thursday.

Dillon Fuel Co., 675 Burnside, was fined $10 for hiring a man without a current chauffeur's license, and Mahinder Singh, 607 Manchester, paid a similar amount after pleading guilty to a charge of failing to have a current chauffeur's license.

Prepaid court fines included 15 for speeding at $15 each, and one each at $5 for parking without lights and failing to halt at a stop sign.

victims, an increase of 30 over 1950.

It was followed by vascular lesions, 167; violent and accidental, 71; tuberculosis, 20; diabetes, 14; digestive tract, 13.

There was a total of 1,336 deaths in 1951. Heart disease took 337 persons over the age of 70; cancer 114, and strokes 109.

Monte Irvin Breaks Ankle

DENVER, Colo., April 4 (AP)—"I heal fast," solemn-faced Monte Irvin, injured New York Giants outfielder and batting star, said from his hospital bed.

"I feel maybe I can be back playing in eight or ten weeks." Then, as if realizing the situation might be more serious than he thinks, he added: "I hope I can get to play a few games, anyway."

His right leg was rigid in a cast from ankle to above the knee. The cast might well be the iron collar that chokes off the Giants' hopes for a second straight National League pennant. Irvin's ankle was snapped in a compound fracture as he slid into third base in Thursday's exhibition game with Cleveland Indians. A Denver surgeon who set the ankle declined to say when the stellar negro leftfielder might be able to use it again.

New Nanaimo Canadians To Color May Festivity

NANAIMO, April 4 (Special).—The committee planning Nanaimo's Empire Day celebration this year may find itself the instigator of a completely new set of rules for observation of this day in Canada. With the core of the whole celebration to be the exhibition of various customs and folk dances of national groups in the district, the committee feels it could set a precedent for extending the hand of friendship to new Canadians.

Plans for furthering this departure from traditional, stereotyped form of celebration here got well under way at a meeting Tuesday night.

Frank Anzik, representative of the Citizenship Council, who is working with the committee, reported excellent reception from at least six national groups in the city. Those who had signified whole-hearted willingness to plan programs were the Hungarian, Polish, Danish, Croatian Peasant, Italian and Norwegian societies. Some will enter floats, some folk dances, and all will be in full costume.

Further groups which may be approached in this respect are the Indian bands, Chinese citizens and possibly a Scottish or Irish society.

Unanimously agreed that this completely new undertaking would prove the biggest event in celebration history here, the committee adjusted all its program plans to what would best suit these entertainers.

OTHER ATTRACTIONS

Further attractions of the day will be the crowning of the May queen, soap-box derby, and one of the biggest carnivals ever to be brought into the district. Local amateur acting group, the Nanaimo Community Players, announced tentative plans to produce a children's attraction in the way of a play, "The Wizard of Oz."

Several out-of-town bands are expected to be brought in. R.C.N. band from Esquimalt and the Canadian-Scottish band from Victoria will be contacted in this respect.

R.C.A.F. headquarters in Vancouver will be queried regarding execution of an air show over the city on May 24.

Budget for the event this year was found to be considerably higher than usual, but by canvassing of local business concerns it is hoped to raise the required sum. The committee will promote the idea that the event is a public responsibility. It hopes to see the public in general as co-operative as have been service clubs and other organizations.

R.C.A.F. INSTRUCTOR DISMISSED

GIMLI, Man., April 3 (CP)—An R.C.A.F. court martial Thursday dismissed with disgrace a 26-year-old flying instructor convicted on four of five charges of flying under the influence of alcohol.

The instructor, FO Robert C. Christianson of Keewatin, Ont., was arrested by Ontario provincial police Feb. 29 after he crash-landed his Harvard trainer on Rabbit Lake near Kenora.

In his defense, Christianson testified he had been drinking the night before in the mess at Gimli air station. The next thing he remembered was a flashing red light in the cockpit of the plane warning him the aircraft was out of gas.

In his testimony, Christianson said morale at Gimli is "very low." The sentence is subject to confirmation by Defense Minister Claxton.

Fire Leaves 20 Homeless At Peterboro'

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., April 4 (CP)—A fire in the heart of this city's downtown business section Thursday night caused an estimated $250,000 damage and left some 20 persons homeless.

The fire in the Broun Building, at Charlotte and George Streets, broke out about 4:15 p.m. EST. and was brought under control about 4½ hours later.

Two of three business premises in the building were badly damaged by smoke and water. They were Dueller's grocery and butcher store and the Hollywood cafe.

Seven families were driven from their apartments above the stores. Most of their belongings were lost.

Death from pneumonia in Canada in 1950 totalled 4,633, compared with an average of 8,039 in the years from 1926 to 1930.

REMEMBRANCE FOR MINER

'National Wildlife Week' Move to Aid Conservation

By ROY THORSEN

Next week citizens are urged to consider the needs and wants of the creatures of the forest. It is "National Wildlife Week" throughout Canada, a week that is always to include April 10, the birthday of the late Jack Miner, who is referred to as "the father of the wildlife conservation movement on the North American Continent."

It is an appropriate time for Canadians to pay attention to their feathered friends particularly, because the birds are returning to their summer haunts to mate and nest—and this week should remind them to clean out their birdhouses and homes.

The Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, according to president Ray Ritchie, is planning on several window displays throughout the city to encourage "Wildlife Week."

Commenting on the fish and game club's action, E. Doug Wood, one of the local "Jack Miners," says: "It is a great thing to see such occasions as these receive co-operation from the public. It shows that we, as sportsmen and sportswomen, are just as eager to protect and care for the great wildlife heritage of ours as we are to harvest it in the fall."

Wood is in the throes of a program to establish homes for tree-nesting ducks in this area.

Rules Are Few and Action Fast When Rivals Jockey for Position in Free-for-All Rummage Scrimmage

By DAVE STOCK

The stadium was packed. The crowd went wild. Participants gave the game all they had.

Though hockey fans may suspect the foregoing an advance lead for tonight's Cougar game, it actually is a description of sporting event that took place in this city earlier today.

The event was the annual V.O.N. rummage sale staged in the Public Market Building. It was a wow.

To this observer it proved rummage sales are still this city's best, free-admission sports events. Though it must be admitted, some of the veteran players in the local league are losing their drive and fight.

Proof of this was seen in the fact that relatively few penalties were called during this morning's contest by the two city police officers assigned to maintain principles of good sportsmanship.

The old tug-of-war game with pyjama legs which used to be a highlight of rummage sales five years ago is no more. Alas and alack! Rummagers have become better mannered.

Instead of snatching goods from one another as they used to do, they merely shout at one another.

"See here, are you going to buy that, because if you don't, I want it."

Those who shout the loudest have a definite advantage in this game. Oh, it's jolly fun.

Today's sale was the first attended by this spectator since 1947. But the committee in charge remembered him from last time.

"Oh, are you here again," was the greeting.

"You don't know what trouble you caused last time. We had ever so many complaints. Lots of people said they would never come to our sales again if they were going to have their pictures taken and put in the paper."

That's the "funny" part about rummage sales. Hundreds of people attend from all levels of society but are all afraid that somebody will see them.

But thanks to a free press, dear readers, you can still be told the truth of what goes on at such events.

For instance, today:

An elderly man protested bitterly about inflation when informed the price of the shoes he wanted to purchase would be 50 cents. The seller snapped back, "Well, what do you expect?"

At the coat rack a stout lady sought advice of a seller as to whether the "shortie" she was trying fitted. The seller said,

"Why it was made for you." But it wasn't, you know, as anyone could plainly see.

A funny thing at the kitchen utensils stall: A man picked up a bundle of yellow stuff that looked like cotton waste. The sales lady told him it was for weather stripping. A bystander said it was for packing around furnaces.

The man bought it for a dime, saying he would figure out what it was when he got it home.

And at the book counter: A prim-looking woman, looking over the selection, explained she was looking for something suitable for her child.

"I'm careful about what she reads," she declared.

At the moment she was fingering a book entitled Helen's Babies and Other People's Children. In smaller print the cover said: "Two shillings with full-page engravings."

Right next to it was a book with a red and black cover called "Crime In America." Both cost 10 cents.

The ladies' underwear stall was doing a roaring business but that was no place for a male.

And over in the men's department were two khaki officer's uniforms going for $7 each. According to the number of small holes I noticed in the shoulder straps, they once belonged to a person of high rank.

Nearly bought them, as a matter of fact. Figured I'd look pretty sharp as a general.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Directly north-northeast of this space in yesterday's Times appeared an appeal from the Victoria Natural History Society for help in selecting a bird to serve as an emblem for B.C.

The Society seems to believe we need a bird to use in tourist advertisements.

So we can give the tourists the bird, in a manner of speaking.

The Society, however, deserves every encouragement, and, as a bird watcher from 'way back, I am willing to nominate a few types which might otherwise escape attention.

Any of the following birds could well represent B.C. as an emblem, and I hereby enter them in The Times contest.

THE DOUBLED-BILLED BEECH: Native only of this province. Found everywhere from coast to eastern border. In fact, very hard to avoid. Distinguishing cry: Pay-out, Pay-out, Pay-out!

THE SIMPLE BULLCINCH: Nests in and around the Parliament Buildings. Swoops down on visiting fair seekers. Very distinctive song: "C'n fixit, C'n fixit—cinch, cinch."

FULL-CRESTED BEAKER: Something of a rarity in B.C. In fact, any bird watcher spotting one is requested to report immediately to the Hotel Owners' Association.

CITY HALL SWALLOW: Rapidly becoming extinct. Is easy prey to the Sharp-Eyed Cost Cutter, a bird which makes its appearance in cycles coinciding with changes in administration.

THE WELL-CLAWED MEEK: Found mostly in Victoria. Nests in office of civic employees. Recognized by its call, "Yesesyes."

ONE-EYED GULL: Flies in constant circles over Victoria, crying "Cliee Prittee, Cliee Prittee." Keeps one eye always closed as it flies over places such as the smoke-filled downtown section and grimy public buildings.

There are other birds, such as the Greater and Lesser Lush, the Often Quail, and the Childish Beller, but these are not so typical of B.C.

The above list should give the Natural History Society a send-off in a search for our feathered emblem.

Happy hunting.

Overheard in the Esquimalt Road Super Valu: "Look at this—a real bargain in margarine—two half-pounds for the price of a pound."

The showers of April won't water,
The flowers of May near so well,
As the tears of ex-single fellows,
Who have fallen for romance's spell.

They are running about in this office with a vacation list these days. What our reporters seek is a vacation that will be broadening and not flattening.

ISLAND DIGEST

NANAIMO, April 4—Rev. John McTurk died suddenly on Thursday, just a week before he was due for an operation to remove a piece of shrapnel that had been lodged in his brain since the First World War.

He was found dead in a chair in his living room.

Born in Turnhill, Scotland, in 1880, he worked as a coal miner, and came to Canada in 1923. He took his first pastorate in 1924, and was a leader in construction of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The funeral will be held Saturday at St. Andrew's Church.

SIDNEY, April 4—Construction of a new fireproof hospital in North Saanich is a distinct possibility, according to plans being worked out by C. M. Crawford, administrator of Rest Haven Hospital.

Arnold Moran, hospital board member, told Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce that a 50-bed hospital is being considered, with permanent heating and laundry facilities to serve a 100-bed institution.

DUNCAN, April 4—North Cowichan Municipality, with a forest reserve of 17,000 acres, has asked for a similar area of Crown land on its boundaries to make a worthwhile forest management unit.

"We had never considered municipalities," Dr. C. D. Orchard, deputy forest minister, told the council. "I can readily see the tremendous educational value of a municipal scheme, apart from the municipal revenue that would result."

An amendment is possible, he said.

NANAIMO, April 4—A Canadian half-penny, more than 100 years old, has been found on Gabriola Island, opposite Nanaimo. It was picked up by William Hume on the grounds of Trent-Ham Convalescent Home.

SIDNEY, April 4—Postal authorities will employ additional staff in order to keep the general delivery wicket at the post office open during all normal business hours.

Until now it was necessary to close the mail distribution wicket while mail was being sorted.

NEWS BRIEFS

The provincial government is expected to make an announcement soon on the B.C. Government Employees' Association application for 6 per cent across the board wage increases.

It is understood the civil service commission has completed the job of figuring out the cost, and has submitted its report.

More than 10,000 provincial civil servants are affected.

Victoria's 200 plumbers and their wives will meet tonight at 7.30 at Club Sirocco to celebrate the 50th anniversary of their union local—United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steamfitters, Local 324 (T.L.C.). President Edward Irvine will be chairman, and in his toast to the association will recall the old days of the trade in and around Victoria.

The Laurier Club of Victoria will move its regular meeting to Sidney next Thursday, to hear an address by Hon. W. T. Strath, minister of education and provincial secretary.

The dinner meeting will be held at 7 in Hotel Sidney.

Hearings on compensation cases will be held before the Workmen's Compensation Board April 21 in Victoria at 536 Broughton.

PUBLIC WORKS STAFF LASHED BY SKILLINGS

Over-Staffed, Idle, Alderman Complains

Ald. Waldo Skillings lashed the city public works department today on grounds of over-staffing and idle equipment.

He said over-staffing was at the "administrative level."

He claimed Saanich was spending $1 for $1 with Victoria on public works with one-third the administrative staff.

The alderman complained the city has half a million dollars worth of equipment which he says lies idle in Garbally Road yards for all but a few weeks of the year.

He took his stores and yards committee—a branch of city council's finance group—on an inspection tour this morning.

"They're (public works) proposing to buy another $50,000 in equipment this year," Skillings said. "It's ridiculous."

GO OUT OF BUSINESS

He reiterated his stand that the city should go out of the business of road building. He advocated selling much of the equipment and handling only minor repairs.

Tenders should be called and contracts let for roads and other construction jobs, he believes.

"It's ridiculous to have equipment on hand if it's not working 24 hours a day," said Ald. Brent Murdoch in support of Skillings.

Prior to the tour, Skillings hit out at the staff question. He charged the public works "is top heavy with administrative offices."

He said an alderman, whom he did not name at the meeting, was making a study of the city public works department in relation to those of other municipalities. He referred specifically to Saanich.

Skillings felt the city might find itself in "an invidious position" when results of the study are made known.

Driver Fights Court Case To No Avail

A motorist was fined $200 in police court today for impaired driving despite counsel's submission that the use of alcohol had not affected his client.

Convicted of driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol was Kenneth Beecroft, 1434 Westall.

Three police officers testified that Beecroft had shown the effects of liquor at the time he was stopped in his car.

Constable Joe Barlow called Beecroft's condition a "borderline case of intoxication" and Constable John Birch said "in my opinion, he (Beecroft) wasn't fit to be driving a car." Both officers were called by Constable Keith Hollett after he stopped the accused at Pandora and Blanshard.

Defense counsel James J. Proudfoot told the court that unless there was negligent driving shown, the Crown had failed to establish its case.

Money's Tighter: Grauer

New capital needed to double the electrical capacity of the B.C. Electric in the past five years was harder to attract because the company's utility services include a large transit system, president A. E. (Dad) Grauer told Victoria Rotary Club last night.

"In any growing area, the utility company must, year after year, raise large sums of new capital to provide the services the public requires," he said.

"Some financial institutions simply will not invest in a company which includes a transit system."

A second difficulty in raising new capital, the B.C.E. president pointed out, lies in the fact that the rate of return set by the Public Utilities Commission in 1933 is low.

Crepes Suzettes Probe Finds Plain Pancakes

(New wrinkles in cooking, and some wrinkles in side-lights on the Victoria College French culinary course, are Reporter Don Ingham's subjects in the fourth of a series on the lectures he is attending. Saturday's is the concluding story of his adventures in a French kitchen.)

By DON INGHAM

Mrs. Mabelle Andison's French cooking course at Victoria College has led to a shattering disillusionment.

"For years I have been reading in the posh fiction magazines about the smart set ordering up crepes suzettes with dash and elan.

Always, of course, the scene was in some smart restaurant on the side street known only to the few wealthy habitués. Ah, I used to think, what a way to live—glamour, soft light and crepes suzettes.

JUST PANCAKES

Now I find the things are nothing, but—pancakes. But—superb, mind you, when made by Mrs. Andison, and far, far removed from the usual Sunday morning effort. "Crepes" are what we call a dessert.

The most devastating part of the whole affair, though, is that everyone but myself seems to know the things are just flapjacks in top hats.

Mrs. Andison makes with the curacao; and while opening the bottle dropped a valuable hint for wine-bibbers.

The corkscrew must never pierce the bottom of the cork.

"If you do, you might cause some cork to drop into the bottle," she said. "You don't want it, it doesn't taste nice, it must be removed, and it just isn't done."

A facet of French cooking that divides the country along a sharp line is the use of materials.

"In the north, in the dairy country around Normandy and

LIBERALS NAME INDIAN CHIEF

Percy B. Ross, chief of the Songhees Indian Reserve, Thursday night was elected vice-president of the View Royal Liberal Association.

It is believed to be one of the few times in Canadian history an Indian chief has been elected to office in a political association.

Geoffrey Edgelow was elected president to succeed Stan Darling, and Mrs. Vivian Darling was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Edgelow is seeking the Liberal nomination in the Esquimalt riding.

CANCER CURABLE

Detection Can Disarm Race's Dread Killer

By R. E. PORTER

Cancer is the second greatest killer of our time.

Yet it is the most curable of all major causes of death—if detected and treated in its early stages.

You can avoid cancer, the killer, if you watch for early signs of the disease, and see your physician at once.

Even so apparently simple an ailment as persistent indigestion may be a warning of cancer.

You can help others avoid cancer by contributing to Victoria's Conquer Cancer campaign.

Funds are used for education, research, expansion of research facilities and welfare assistance. The 1952 campaign is now on.

Objective: $30,000. Collected as of this morning, $5,750. Send contributions to Room 1, Black Ball Ferry Building, Victoria.

City Man to Face Higher Court on Charge of Fraud

A 44-year-old meat-cutter was committed for trial in a higher court today on a charge of obtaining money by false pretences.

Magistrate H. C. Hall committed Emil Calve, 301 Simcoe, after hearing evidence from three witnesses in police court that the accused had tendered a $75 cheque at Woodward's store here last Dec. 22 which was worthless.

Calve, who was returned here this week from Prince Rupert after allegedly jumping $1,000 bail when he failed to make a court appearance last Feb. 28 on the charge, did not give evidence during the preliminary hearing.

Court was told a friend of the accused made the cheque good after Calve was arrested. He was represented in court by lawyer Patrick J. Sinnott.

Crew Laid Off for Refusal To Sail When Cheques Late

Nine crew members of the R.C.N. tug Laymore, based at Esquimalt, have been paid off because they refused to sail earlier in the week, it was learned today.

The ship was scheduled to slip at noon Tuesday and just as the lines were about to be cast off, the men stated they would not sail unless paid.

Their paydays are on the 1st and 16th of each month, and on Tuesday, their cheques were not ready until 1 in the afternoon.

On previous occasions when the tug, which is manned by a civilian crew, was to sail on paydays, sailings were delayed until cheques were issued.

The men apparently believed this would be done again, and made no protest to officers or their ship steward until the ship was ready to leave.

The sailing was canceled, and the nine men, all ordinary seamen, were paid off. Replacements have since been signed on, bringing the ship's strength up to its regular 23 officers and men.

Protection Cuts Insurance Costs

Victoria residents protected by municipal fire and water services now pay lower rates for their fire insurance.

B.C. Underwriters Association has announced a reduced scale, effective April 1, which cuts costs of fire insurance protection by 10 to 15 per cent.

Reductions apply to all new and renewal policies in B.C.

Douglas Key Traffic Way

Official Admits Error in Detail Of Quadra-Pat Bay Route Report

The new Patricia Bay-Victoria highway will enter the city along Douglas Street.

A government official told The Times Thursday the highway would enter Victoria along Quadra St., not Douglas. He reported this morning he was in error.

The highway will link up with the Douglas extension near the Saanich Health Centre.

It will meet the new Victoria Island Highway outlet at Regina Avenue.

Tenders for reconstruction of the 2.4 miles of road will be called next week.

Douglas Street, between Regina and North Quadra, at present is narrow and has a poor surface.

Plans call for a 24-foot pavement with 10-foot shoulders on each side. Straightening work will require the moving of several buildings, and the government will have to buy considerable property to widen the existing road.

Paving on the reconstructed portion of Douglas will be done next year.

BIG ADVANTAGE

The hook-up of the Patricia Bay highway with the new Victoria outlet, which is part of the Trans-Canada system and will be started soon, will be a great advantage to Saanich Peninsula residents. They will have a fast route into the city, avoiding Quadra which is thick with school zones.

Paving on the Glanford Ave. Keating Cross Road section of the Patricia Bay Highway will start soon, and grading of the Keating Cross Road-Sidney section is under way.

Proposed Repair Job on City Hall Shelved Pro Tem

Proposed renovations at City Hall were shelved by City Council's finance committee today pending the next meeting of Greater Victoria Water Board.

City Manager Cecil Wyatt referred to space that might be utilized on the third floor and to proposed expansion of the purchasing agent's offices to take in the former health office at City Hall.

Question arose at the last water board meeting of the possibility of the board being asked to move back into City Hall.

Ald. Waldo Skillings, chairman of finance's housing section, felt no move should be made until the water board decides on its course of action.

Victoria Soldier Arriving From War

Pte. Roderick E. Perry, 794 Hillside, is one of 20 British Columbia "shorties" on a troop ship from Lumbians who will arrive "shortly" on a troop ship from Korea to dock at Seattle.

A total of 250 Canadian soldiers from the battlefield are on the ship. They will be driven from Seattle to Vancouver by bus.

LENTEN LESSONS

Paul's Choice Valid Over 1900 Years Later

What things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ. Philippians 3:7

Most people have heard some time or other the radio program "Double or Nothing." Paul anticipates this idea by some 1,900 years. He considers two possibilities: living without Christ or with Christ.

Paul thought of all his former advantages and privileges and said that they amounted to nothing as he placed on the other side Christ and what He meant to him.

As Pharisee he had enjoyed distinction. He could boast of belonging to the best society in Jerusalem. By birth he was a Roman citizen, no mean honor. He had been born with a golden spoon in his mouth. Life had been good and kind to him. He was envied by many and was the pride of his family. None came better. So Paul thought himself until he met Jesus on the Damascus road. Then all these distinctions meant nothing. Jesus gave him more than double.

Jesus put on him the new robe of righteousness which saves. He found all his sin hidden from the sight of God under the perfect holiness of Jesus.

Jesus gave him a new hope. Heaven was his by the gift of this marvelous grace which let him stand in the courts of God uncondemned.

Christ gave him a new kind of joy, the joy of service, the opportunity to tell the story of Jesus and His love, and the joy of sharing with other pilgrims of the way this new peace in this Saviour.

So Paul had more than double when Christ came to his heart and took full possession of his life.

Formation of New Chapters Planned To Assist Work Mill Bay Solarium

SPAGHETTI DRIED BEEF DINNER

When you want to doll up a can or so of spaghetti, frizzle some dried beef in butter to go with it. Mix it with the hot tomato-sauced spaghetti, and it's a dish that's "delish." Use about 1/2 pound of dried beef to two cans of spaghetti. Have it for lunch with a salad of sliced oranges and cottage cheese. If it's dinner time, have a vegetable dish of succotash (green beans and corn) along with the spaghetti and salad.

Plans to organize three new chapters modeled on lines of the Victoria group as to constitution, by-laws, aims and objects, were made at a special meeting of the Solarium Junior League, called to discuss ways and means of assisting Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Location of chapters and active plans for organization will be made in the near future. Although the Solarium treats patients from all parts of British Columbia, it was decided at this time to confine expansion of league activities to key centres on Vancouver Island.

Special guests at the meeting were Solarium Board members—Mrs. J. W. Archer, Mr. J. R. L. Burridge, Mr. Stewart H. Evans, Mr. G. E. Edgell and Mr. Justin Harbord; Mr. J. S. Holdstock, administrator, and Mrs. E. Clayton Peters, public relations officer. Mrs. Margaret Drinkwater, president of the Thetis

Chapter of the Solarium Junior League, came over from Vancouver to report on the success of the league's Vancouver chapter. A number of associate members of the Solarium Junior League were present, including five past presidents.

Among other matters discussed at the meeting was the Tag Day to be held in the city April 5. It is hoped proceeds from the Tag Day will be sufficient to take the 1952 Shower of Dimes over the top.

The Solarium's sizeable deficit for 1951 prompted the Junior League to call this meeting in an effort to find a way of giving this institution greater financial assistance.

SHORTCUT CHEESE SAUCE

For spring vegetables like asparagus and green beans, cheese sauce is a luxury touch. Make sauce the quick way—with condensed cream of mushroom or celery soup as the base. Just stir together one can (1 1/4 cups) of the soup and 1/2 cup of shredded cheddar cheese; heat over low heat, stirring constantly until blended. Pour over the cooked vegetables. This is enough sauce for about two cups of cooked vegetables.

Nanaimo Women Hold Discussion On Massey Report

Nanaimo University Women's Club speakers went on record this week in contending that there is not enough support or encouragement given talented Canadian artists.

The contention arose out of a panel discussion on the Massey Report.

Mrs. A. B. Hall, chairman, pointed out that Canada is the only civilized country in the world without a national library.

"And it has only just taken steps to make improvements to existing art galleries and museums," she said.

Miss Betty Drummond, speaking on letters, folklore and drama, said too little emphasis was given to drama in Canada. She expressed the opinion that Canada was still following the lead of England and the United States in this art.

Outlining how the Massey Report dealt with painting, sculpture, architecture and other arts, Mrs. R. E. Foerster said there was a great need in this country for more exhibitions and more monetary support.

Mr. Robert P. Jellett, chairman of Board of Royal Trust Company, and Mrs. Jellett, and Mr. W. Wynne Robinson, member of advisory board of National Trust Company, and Mrs. Robinson, all of Montreal, arrived in the city today to spend a few days at the Empress Hotel following a vacation in California.

Miss Ina Robertson, April bride-elect, was guest of honor at a shower given by her aunt, Mrs. A. M. Robertson, and cousin, Miss Janet Robertson, in their Foul Bay Road home. The bride-elect received a corsage of red roses, and her mother, Mrs. J. Robertson, was presented with pink carnations. Gifts were in a decorated basket of pale green and yellow. Mrs. H. M. Green sent a gift from Vancouver and guests at the shower were Mesdames J. Woolley, R. Bentley, G. Robertson, P. Thornber, H. Calvert, J. Harper, A. Shaw, J. Smith, J. Sutherland, J. S. The guest-of-honor was presented with a corsage of African violets. Guests were Mesdames P. Notley, E. Lohnbrunner, L. Stocker, G. Stewart, R. Ashmore, A. Lester, M. Maggiora, W. Norton and Miss Sylvia Dalen.

Would Extend Hours For Nursery School

A general discussion of the question of attempting to lengthen hours of attendance was held at a recent meeting of Greater Victoria Nursery School. Proposed hours would be from nine to three instead of the present nine to 12 and lunch would be provided in addition to a rest period for the children. Both Miss A. Atwood and Miss E. Ashdown felt this change would be most advantageous, especially for the younger-age group from two to four years. To investigate the possibilities of such a plan, a committee has been formed.

Dr. H. M. Edmison presided at the meeting and it was decided to hold a study group on the subject of "Fears" Wednesday at the home of Mrs. P. O. Neal, 555 Harbinger.

LEADERSHIP REAL FACTOR IN INDUSTRY

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian industry is suffering from a serious lack of trained leaders, says Mrs. Alma Carbonneau, one of the few Canadian women business organizers and trainers of personnel.

"Industry is developing at such a pace that we are faced with a shortage of qualified leaders to train the mass of workers," she says.

Training programs, she says, would result in an increased national output but only a few of the bigger Canadian firms have established them for their personnel.

Talking up these programs is one of Mrs. Carbonneau's favorite topics. She sees them as a solution to many ailments in present-day industry.

"Training is re-orienting peoples' thinking. It is urging people to learn more, so more can be created, accomplished and produced," she says.

Produce News 'Is Varied
This Week—Good and Bad

By PENNY SAVER

On again, off again! Here again, gone again! That elusive oil sun is even more unpredictable than that razzle-dazzle hockey team of ours.

If it keeps on doing a disappearing act, goodness only knows what's going to happen to the produce scene.

At the moment things aren't too bad although local seed potatoes are expected to rise in price. They are 69 to 89 cents a 10-pound bag.

Forced rhubarb from Fraser Valley is nice but unfortunately on the short list. Selling at 23 pennies a pound, Texas spinach is priced at 25 pennies a package—washed and trimmed ready to cook. Mexican tomatoes are up a cent or two this week—priced at 23 pennies a tube, but are a better color.

Labor conditions in South America are still affecting our supply of bananas, but despite the shortage they are still selling for 20 cents a pound.

New Potatoes New, But Old!

That's right! The shipment of new potatoes from California are new in a sense, but then again they are old. The fact of the matter is that they have been held in the ground for the winter and just dug up now and shipped to us. They are priced at three pounds for 29 cents. Florida new potatoes are selling for the same price. No. 2 coast gems and No. 2 Alberta gems are priced at 10 pounds for 73 pennies.

Supply of Oregon onions is just about depleted. Those left are selling at two pounds for a quarter. Australia and New Zealand onions are due this week to replace them.

Oranges are down in price; you'll find them selling at 55 cents for two dozen No. 334 and 53 cents for two dozen No. 220.

Asparagus is down in price, but still expensive at 45 cents a pound.

Very nice shipment of Oregon parsnips is in right now and selling for 10 pennies a pound.

Watermelons have dropped in price about two-and-a-half cents, but according to reports from the wholesalers they are not selling. That's it for this week!

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

'Ends of Hair Look Burned'
May Just Have to Grow Out

Q: "Recently I had a permanent wave. This made the ends of my hair look burned and it doesn't look natural at all. I can't stand fuzzy-looking hair. Is there anything I can do to make it softer, or at least can I do something about the burned ends?"

A: This is your operator's fault. There is no excuse for burned ends. You probably will just have to stick it out until the hair grows out some for perfect correction, but treatments can help. I would suggest that you go back to the one who ruined your hair except, if that operator knew so little as to burn your hair she probably will not know how to help you now. I suggest that you go to another salon and see what they can do for you! Insist on a test curl or two the next time you have a permanent.

Q: "I am 5 feet 2 inches tall and weigh 112 pounds. I am average build. My bust measures 35 inches, my waist 24½ inches and my hips 34 inches. I look as if my hips and waist are almost the same because my hips and ribs practically meet. I seem to have a lot of fat at my waistline and above it. What should I do?"

A: There is almost 10 inches difference between your waist and your hips. That is fine. I feel sure that the reason your figure appears as it does is because you are very short-waisted, with little distance between the bust and the waistline. You can minimize this by improved posture and clothes design.

Hold yourself well. Lift the ribs cage and in this way increase the distance between your ribs and your waist. Do not wear belts or any design which goes around the waist or diaphragm. Instead wear costumes which are closely fitted over the diaphragm, a waistline

TODAY'S RECIPE

EGG SAVORY

If you should have trouble in getting your family to eat eggs, here's a delightful surprise. Try it next Sunday for either breakfast or lunch and just sit back and wait for the comments.

One rasher bacon, four eggs, one very small onion, scraps cooked liver, one Oxo cube, two tablespoons butter, pepper, buttered toast.

Solve Oxo cube in four tablespoons hot water (one teaspoon beef Oxo may be substituted, if desired). Chop onion very finely and cut bacon in small pieces. Fry gently in melted butter 10 minutes. Add chopped liver and heat a few minutes. Drain pan from heat and break in eggs. Add Oxo and pepper to taste. Return pan to stove. Stir over low heat until it thickens. Pile on hot buttered toast and garnish with sprigs of parsley. Serve with fried tomatoes or mushrooms. Number of servings: four.

New gas refrigerators of the 8 cubic foot size have room for 48 standard packages of frozen foods even with all the ice cube trays in position.

The general food compartment holds 18 square refrigerator dishes. Two glass-covered food fresheners provide moist cold for vegetables and fruits.

Costume Jewels Have Million-$1 Look

A housewife—and obviously one of London's prettiest—25-year-old Mrs. Carol Anderson models some of the costume jewelry which will be on display among the expensive creations in the "Millionaires' Row," the display of British costume jewellers, of this year's British Industries Fair (May 5-16) in London. Left: silver-set necklace, hair ornament and brooch. Right: Oriental motif in gold-set garnets. Hair ornament, earrings and necklace are completed with a small clip at the centre of the neckline. Precious-gem craftsmen's skill has gone into the creations which are claimed detectable only by experts.

Hooked Rug Expert Likes Them Braided

ST. JACOBS, Ont. (CP)—Colors are bright and the red, greens and yellows are heightened by strips of navy blue. The latter originally were different colors. First they were braided and then dyed.

Mrs. Hahn has become so expert that she can make a hooked rug in a week. Patterns of this kind are varied. Blocks and floral patterns are among her favorites.

ARRANGED
IN INDIA

MONTREAL (CP)—Marriage comes first and love second in India and what's more it seems to work better than the western custom of "marrying for love."

So says M. C. Dharmaraj, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Nagpur, India, adding that India has retained its ancient custom of parents arranging marriages for their children.

"Couples fall in love following the wedding and it seems an effective system as we hear of no cases of broken marriages," he says.

Mr. Dharmaraj says marriages in India aren't as much of a "gamble" as they are in Canada and the western world because the girls' parents check the man's background, financial position and other characteristics before they sanction the union.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

Young Hooty was the living image of his father, Hooty the Great Horned Owl. He wasn't quite as big yet, but he soon would be. Truth to tell he was feeling quite as big just now. You see he had found out what wings are for. For the first time he had used them to fly. He had left the nest high up in a big tree where all his short life up to now had been spent. I could fly. It is easy. There is nothing to it. You just flap your wings and there you are flying. He thought as he fluffed out his feathers to make himself look bigger. Father and mother were fussing over him. They were as excited as if he had done something really big. They were flying about him, snapping their bills and making a great fuss. Father fed him the food that had been the cause of his falling out of the nest. And then mother had brought more. They seemed to have forgotten his sister up in the nest. He could hear her crying. "May I go hunting with you?" he asked Hooty. I suspect that could Hooty smile he would have smiled then. But he cannot smile or even grin. No owl can. Nor can other birds. Of course not. How could they with such stiff horny lips? Of course in a way their bills really are their lips. "When you can fly I'll take you hunting with me," said Hooty. "But I can fly. I flew down here," cried young Hooty. "Then let me see you fly back up to the nest," replied Hooty. I suspect there was a twinkle in those big, round, yellow eyes of his. Young Hooty tried. He jumped up in the air flapping his big wings and did fly a little way above the ground but not up. He flapped his wings as fast as he could but went only a little way before dropping to the ground. Glad enough he was to have something solid under him. The ground felt funny to his feet. He never had been on it before, never had had a flat surface under his feet. There was nothing for his toes and big curved claws to curl around and take hold of. He didn't like it. He felt clumsy and out of place. Using his wings to help him he half hopped, half flattered to a small log. That was something to take hold of. He could dig his claws into it. He felt better.

Russian Army Ready for War Says Deserter

FRANKFURT, Germany, April 4 (Reuters).—A former Red Army major, Petr Nicolayevich Belov, 33, said Thursday the Russian Army is ready to fight at any moment even though most of its officers and men are no longer loyal to Communism. Belov, sick of Soviet rule and facing the imminent threat of being sent back to Russia, recently fled to the west, where his German fiancée awaited him. In a statement at a press conference, arranged by U.S. authorities here, the artillery major said Russia has real cause to fear its disillusioned army in the Soviet zone of Germany. If the men of the Red army in Germany knew the U.S. grants asylum to all honest persons, "many thousands would want to come here as I have done." Nevertheless, he said in answer to reporters' questions, Russian troops are better equipped and trained than they were at the end of the war. Belov told reporters that none of his fellow officers, not even close friends, had dared to say a disloyal word.

Reds, Non-Reds Exchange Blows

VIENNA, Austria, April 4 (Reuters).—A free-for-all fist fight broke out in the lower Austrian provincial chamber of deputies Thursday between Communists and non-Communists. The fracas began when a Communist lost his temper during a debate on Austria's east-west relations, shouted across the chamber to the right-wing deputies: "You Fascist clowns, you blow-up dwarfs," then swung one at the closest rightists.

U.K. Soccer

LONDON, April 3 (Reuters).—Results of soccer matches played Newport County 1, Leyton Orient 0, in the English League. DIVISION II (SOUTHERN) Colchester United 4, Reading 1, Watford 3, Brighton and Hove 1.

Chinese at Moscow Meet Seeking Trade Contracts

MOSCOW, April 4 (Reuters).—Communist China's delegates to the world economic conference announced Thursday before the talks opened that they came armed with authority to make specific trade contracts with other countries. They plunged into a two-hour discussion with eight British delegates. Some British delegates are known to be seeking trading contracts in Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia as well as China. Nan Nan-chen, chief Chinese negotiator and a director of the People's Bank of China, told the Britons that China is in great need of capital goods to help the country's current phase of "tremendous industrialization." He invited the Britons to seek Chinese markets for clothing, textiles and footwear—British industries now undergoing a recession. The British delegation, here independently and not with government backing, told the Chinese they want oilseeds, grain, feedstuffs and chemicals. The two groups will meet again Saturday to make concrete decisions. The world conference—the biggest get-together of this kind Moscow has ever seen—opened formally in the city's trade union hall this afternoon. Five hundred trade unionists, economists and business men are attending. Many have come from the west—including Canada and the U.S.—though the United Nations has refused to send representatives and some western governments have called the meeting an attempt to counter western trade tie-ups. Morris Miller of Montreal and six other Canadian delegates are attending. Germ Charge Held False UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., April 4 (AP).—The United Nations' top health expert said Thursday Communist China's own newspapers and broadcasts apparently give the lie to Red charges that the United States is waging germ warfare in North Korea and China. Dr. Brock Chisholm of Canada, head of the World Health Organization, told a press conference: "If there were bacteriological warfare, we would recognize it by the fact that large numbers of people would be dying quickly over very large areas. From news and radio reports this does not appear to be the case." Moreover, Dr. Chisholm said, "if the U.N. was in bacteriological warfare, it would be far more efficient than it now appears to be."
